INVENTOR FINDS WAY TO KEEP WIRELESS CLEAR

Roy A. Weagant of Marconi Company Removes Static Interference.

General Manager Says Colleague Has Perfected Marconi's Discovery.

OFFERED IT TO GOVERNMENT

Continuous Service During 24 Hours is Assured and High Towers Are No Longer Necessary.

Roy A. Weagant, chief engineer of the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company of America, it was announced yesterday, has perfected an invention which has taken the "static" out of wireless telegraphy, thereby removing the greatest obstacle to the clear transmission of radio messages. "Static" is the presence in the air of a large amount of uncontrolled electricity. It often, and for considerable periods of time, made it impossible to send wireless messages, because the operator at the receiving end could make nothing out of what was being sent. "Static" to wireless telegraphy was what the old buzzing used to be on a long-distance telephone wire, making it impossible for the receiver to hear anything but the buzz.

So important is the invention regarded that Edward J. Nally, Vice President and General Manager of the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company of America, said yesterday that, with the exception of the invention of the system itself, it was the most vitally important in the history of wireless telegraphy. "Marconi invented the wireless," said Mr. Nally, "and Mr. Weagant has perfected it."

The invention prevents "by a selective system" the interference or crossing of one wireless message with another, regardless of the operation of any number of high-power stations,' and it reduces the amount of power heretofore required to operate a wireless station by about one-half, making possible a saving of 50 per cent. in fuel. The official announcement of the invention was made for the company by Mr. Nally yesterday afternoon and reads as follows:

Static Interference Ended.

With the conditions that pledged us to absolute secrecy no longer prevailing, the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company of America is permitted to announce a discovery and invention in wireless telegraphy that will mark a new era in world communication. It is America's contribution to science in solving a problem that has engaged the best scientific minds of the world. Ever since the genius of Marconi made wireless telegraphy a fact, the only limitation of this method of communication was the deadly phenomena of "static conditions." It was "static"—the presence of a large amount of uncontrolled electricity in the air—that at the beginning of the war often entirely prostrated the wireless service even between the most powerful stations erected in Europe and America. Static conditions were responsible for abnormal delays and for the mutilation of words in wireless messages.

It was the one great obstacle to continuous communication by means of electro-magnetic waves in the air. So baffling was the problem that Marconi issued a personal appeal to every wireless operator in the world to record his observations and to collect data on the subject. Some of the leading scientific minds in the universe struggled to overcome the effects of the static disturbances. World-wide researches were instituted and large sums of money expended, but the end sought was not obtained.

It remained for an American radio expert, Roy A. Weagant, Chief Engineer of the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company of America, to discover the solution of the static problem. Weagant practically had devoted his life to a study of this perplexing phenomenon, and the result of fifteen years of experimental work was about to be published to the world when the United States entered the war. Although patent applications had been made and the claims allowed by the United States Patent Office, the Weagant system was immediately placed at the disposal of the American Government, and every precaution was taken to keep the invention secret until the discovery could be safely announced. With the spirit of research that has made the navy such a magnificent arm of our military service, officials of the Navy Department as-

Luxemburg Chamber Demands Referendum on Government

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 18.—A Luxemburg dispatch says that the Chamber today adopted a motion demanding a referendum to decide the future form of government. The Chamber desires that the Grand Duchess abstain from all governmental action pending the referendum.

A motion, supported by the Liberals and Socialists, demanding the abdication of the Grand Duchess and the establishment of a republic was rejected.

SENATE PASSES PROHIBITION BILL

CONGRESS QUITS THURSDAY

Adjournment Will Be to Dec. 2—Committee Will Work on Revenue Bill.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Adjournment of the present session of Congress next Thursday was arranged today by Democratic and Republican leaders of the Senate and House. This will enable members to secure travel mileage allowances and also will prevent the present session, which began last Dec. 3, from merging with the third and final session of this, the Sixty-fifth Congress, which will open Dec. 2.

Ending of the present session Thursday was agreed upon after the Senate Finance Committee had decided that it could not report the revised $6,000,000,000 revenue bill before the date for the beginning of the new session.

The Senate today, after striking out the Washington rent profiteering rider which had held up the "Wartime Prohibition bill," adopted the latter without a roll call and it will go to the President Thursday after formal signature by Vice President Marshall and Speaker Clark. The most pressing business of the session was thus completed.

The Prohibition bill is in the form of a legislative rider on an emergency appropriation measure providing about $12,000,000 for stimulating agricultural production.

Effect of the legislation, even if approved by President Wilson, is the subject of warm dispute which many members of Congress think the courts will have to settle. The bill would make prohibition effective "after June 30, 1919, until the conclusion of the present war and thereafter until the termination of demobilization, the date of which shall be determined and proclaimed by the President."

Senator Sheppard of Texas, author of the prohibition features, and other dry champions insist that prohibition will go into effect on the date fixed, to continue until demobilization is completed, regardless of when peace is proclaimed. Opponents of the legislation, however, declare that if peace is declared before July 1 the bill cannot be operative, even though demobilization will be in progress thereafter.

The prohibition legislation has important bearing upon the pending War Revenue bill, whose authors estimate an annual revenue loss of more than $1,000,000,000 to the Government from prohibition, including cessation of beer and wine manufacture, ordered Dec. 1 by the Food Administration.

While Congress is adjourned the Senate Finance Committee will continue revision of the Revenue bill in accord with suggestions by Secretary McAdoo, and House committees will begin framing the 1920 appropriation bills. Since the department estimates were prepared with continuance of the war in view, sharp reductions in the appropriations are contemplated by Congressional leaders.

The House Appropriations Sub-committee will meet tomorrow to begin hearings on the Legislative, Executive, and Judiciary bill, while the Naval Committee will begin work at the same time on the Naval Appropriation measure. Secretary Daniels has recommended to Congress that this bill carry $2,400,000,000, but it is expected that this amount will be pared down sharply.

As practically no further business is pending before Congress now, both Houses adjourned today until Thursday.

British Government Has Information of Deliberate Murder Policy.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Information at the disposal of the British Government, Mr. Balfour, Foreign Secretary, stated in the House of Commons today, was to the effect that the deliberate policy of the Bolshevist Government in Russia was one of extermination by starvation, murder, and the wholesale executions of all persons who did not support their régime.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY OF OCCUPATION, Nov. 18.—Resuming its advance toward the Rhine today, the American Army started its second day's march in freezing weather early this morning. It was scheduled to pass Virton, which lies across the Belgian border, and reach Longwy and also Audun-le-Roman and Briey, both only a short distance from the Lorraine border.

The very complicated problems involved in the march of such an army are being met perfectly by the American commanders. Everything has moved smoothly. For the more than 200,000 men supplies, guns, and ammunition must be moved along three main roads from railheads which are further behind each day. It is an undertaking to tax the ability of the Quartermasters of any army.

There is great significance in the army reaching Briey and Longwy, two centres of industry. It is the Briey iron basin from which Germany has derived two-thirds of its iron for war purposes since she invaded this territory in the Fall of 1914.

Many civilians who remained in both towns reported that they had no food since the Germans had left, twenty-four or thirty-six hours before the Americans arrived.

Front Narrowing Gradually.

The front of the American movement is gradually narrowing. The army started on a fifty-three-mile front, while the line at noon today was something more than half that distance. It is a front which will narrow slightly more as the troops move forward to the eastern border of the Duchy of Luxemburg.

There never was any doubt about the way the French inhabitants would receive the victorious Americans. Now they are looking forward with intense interest to see what the reception will be in Luxemburg and to ascertain how the sympathies of the people of the Duchy lie. Of course, that interest is less intense than the interest in how the German civilian population will receive the Americans. The Germans will have no cause for complaint if they behave.

Questioning of released prisoners and civilians shows that while the Saxons, Bavarians, and all Germans except the Prussians do not want anything but peace, the Prussians are still arrogant.

In connection with the withdrawal of the Germans it is interesting to note that the officers are trying to prevent looting, but cannot. The Mayor of Carignan told the Americans today that a German Lieutenant, who remonstrated with his men for pillaging before they left, was set upon.

Another noteworthy fact is that prisoners, released by the Germans, are left without food and are dependent upon the kindness of civilians to prevent their starving. In Montmedy the Germans found that they could not carry away a warehouse, filled with cabbages, so they

America Will First Recall 18,000 Troops in England

LONDON, Nov. 18.—The first American troops to depart homeward as a result of the signing of the armistice will be 18,000 men stationed in England. The American Army expects to start the first shipload of these soldiers homeward within a week and to have all the men on their way back to the United States ten days later.

The plans for clearing England of American troops are incomplete, but it is desired to remove these men immediately, as some shipping is available for this purpose. Most of the 18,000 men are helping the British air force.

American hospital units will be left in England until a policy for caring for future cases of illness among the Americans has been decided upon.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES, Nov. 17.—This morning at 11 o'clock the British troops went forward for the first time since the signing of the armistice and started on their way to the Rhine. I went to the crossroads beyond the Village of Ghislenghien, the furthest outpost at that time beyond Ath on the road to Enghien, southwest of Brussels, and saw the start of this journey, which, in four weeks or so, should place the army of occupation in Germany.

At these cross-roads was an estaminet used as headquarters by an officer commanding a battalion of a division which fought heroically on the Lys in April, who were to wait until a cavalry screen had gone ahead and were then to follow on. Cavalry was on the road for miles between Tournai and Ath, and their first patrols arrived as I stood at the crossroads with a Colonel and some of his officers, surrounded by crowds of civilians with wheelbarrows and handcarts, who had trekked out of Brussels a day or two ago.

Inside the estaminet was a young officer of the Suffolks who had been wounded in October and had been a prisoner since then in a hospital at Hal, near Brussels. He was weak and pale, with a stiff arm which he could hardly move, but he did not complain of his treatment. On the whole, he said, it was fair, except when he was moved from one place to another. German doctors had given him medical attention and German nurses had been kind to him. Then, a few days ago, they told him he might make his way into the British lines, and, ill as he was, he had stumbled along until he reached the outposts.

So we stood chatting for a time at that crossroads near Ghislenghien, which should be famous in history because it was the furthest boundary for the British when the fighting ceased and their starting point along the road to the Rhine, where few of us, however optimistic—and I was never that—thought we should ever go before the conclusion of peace.

Deported Civilians Returning.

Along the road cavalry was coming and behind were columns of field artillery and infantry. It was piercingly cold after a night of hard frost, which had whitened the roofs of all sheds and the tarpaulin covers of all carts and had frozen all the puddles. It was cold enough to nip off the nose of a bronze Buddha, and in a motor car traveling fast the wind cut one like whips; but it was dry, and this frosty day brought color into the cheeks of men, women, and boys, tramping kilometer after kilometer toward Tournai and Lille from Brussels and the neighboring villages—where they had been civil prisoners of the enemy after deportation from their homes.

They are coming home again now by the thousands, as other thousands have been tramping down these roads since the day of the armistice. As the soldiers went forward on the way to the Rhine these people passed them

GERMANS FEAR BOLSHEVISM

Solf Now Asks Changes in "Left Bank of Rhine" Armistice Clauses.

WARNING TO RUSSIAN REDS

ASSEMBLY ELECTION FEB. 2

Ex-Kaiser Reported to Plan Return—Sergeant Now Wurttemberg War Minister.

LONDON, Nov. 18, (Associated Press.)—A long wireless dispatch, signed by Dr. Solf, German Foreign Secretary, and addressed to the American, British, French, and Italian Governments, has been picked up here.

The dispatch asks for elucidation, "in a mollifying sense," of the conditions of the armistice concerning the left bank of the Rhine, without which "we shall inevitably advance to more or less Bolshevist conditions which might become dangerous to neighboring States."

A dispatch from Berlin received in Basle says that the German authorities have notified the Russian Bolshevist Government that representatives must not be sent to Germany.

Election in February Predicted.

The electoral lists for voting for members of the Constituent Assembly in Germany will be completed on Jan. 2, according to a dispatch from Basle to the Paris Journal, quoting advices from Berlin. The elections will be held on Feb. 2.

A provisional council has been formed at Berlin under the Presidency of Dr. Reisser, head of the Hansa League, for the organization of citizens' committees to safeguard the rights of citizens and to support the Government. The council demands an immediate Constituent Assembly.

Representatives of a hundred regiments, assembled in a meeting at Berlin, have also demanded the immediate convocation of a national assembly.

The Independent Socialists have issued a proclamation glorifying the revolution. It says:

"Politicians who agreed to the disgraceful Brest-Litovsk treaty cannot complain if the Entente treats them similarly."

It appeals to the Socialists of foreign countries not to allow their brothers to be oppressed.

Announcement has been made in Copenhagen that Dr. Solf has declared he would propose to Denmark that a plebiscite be held in Schleswig-Holstein to decide whether that territory should remain German or join Denmark.

Prince Max Warns of Anarchy.

A Basle dispatch says that Prince Maximilian of Baden, former German Imperial Chancellor, in an article in the Prussian Year Book, in which he reveals certain facts about his brief term in the Chancellorship, says:

"The German people by the formation of a popular Government is liberated from the dictatorship of General Ludendorff and will never tolerate another.

"It would be a shame for Germany if her enemies, wishing to talk only with a legally established Government, were themselves obliged to convoke a Constituent Assembly. The Government should not surrender this initiative. If it governs democratically it can be assured of the support of all Germans animated by liberal ideas in the accomplishment of its gigantic task."

The former Chancellor reviews the circumstances under which he asked for an armistice and states that the consequences of the offer of an armistice were the resignation of General Ludendorff and the abdication of the Emperor. He continues:

"An attempt was in the making to oust completely the coalition Government. In the first clash in connection with this move, General Ludendorff gave in to the Government, but in the second clash he resigned.

"The question of the Emperor's abdication then came up. The Emperor was conversant with everything and a decision due to his own initiative

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The text of the official statement of President Wilson's decision to go to Europe is as follows:

> The President expects to sail for France immediately after the opening of the regular session of Congress, for the purpose of taking part in the discussion and settlement of the main features of the treaty of peace.
> It is not likely that it will be possible for him to remain throughout the sessions of the formal peace conference, but his presence at the outset is necessary in order to obviate the manifest disadvantages of discussion by cable in determining the greater outlines of the final treaty, about which he must necessarily be consulted.
> He will, of course, be accompanied by delegates who will sit as the representatives of the United States throughout the conference. The names of the delegates will be presently announced.

SAIL TO SURRENDER TO ALLIED FLEET

German Ships Leave Port to Carry Out the Greatest Naval Capitulation.

OUR NAVY REPRESENTED

French Also in the Force, Mainly British, Which Will Receive Submission.

LONDON, Nov. 17, (British Wireless Service.)—This week will see the greatest naval surrender which the world has ever witnessed.

A great fleet of German battleships, battle cruisers, and light cruisers and destroyers will leave port Monday morning at 5 o'clock for an unknown destination. They will be met by the British fleet, accompanied by American and French representatives, and conducted to their destination.

A Berlin telegram received in Amsterdam gives this list of the vessels to be handed over:

BATTLESHIPS.

Kaiser,
Kaiserin,
König Albrecht,
Kronprinz Wilhelm,
Prinz Regent Luitpold,
Markgraf,
Grosser Kurfürst,
Bayern,
König,
Friedrich der Grosse.

BATTLE CRUISERS.

Hindenburg,
Derfflinger,
Seydlitz,
Moltke,
Von der Tann.

LIGHT CRUISERS.

Bremen,
Brummer,
Frankfurt,
Köln,
Dresden,
Emden.

The Times naval correspondent, writing on the subject of the submission of the German Fleet, says:

"The surrender in accordance with the armistice conditions will be made to a force in which the navies of France and America, as well as our own, are represented. In its outward signs the business cannot fail to be impressive.

"The appearance of the long lines of vessels to be surrendered, carrying reduced crews and no armament, the method of their transference to the allied escorts, the exchange of flags on the German ships when that happens and the striking of the colors which have replaced the Imperial ensign, the ancient token of yielding, will be among the more interesting features of the manifestation.

"There is anothe rsignificance which attaches to this act of submission, for it represents the nonfulfillment of one of the principal purposes for which the German Navy was created—to protect Germany's sea trade and colonies .

"The war has come to an end, and Germany has lost her colonies and her trade. She now loses the best part of her effective naval force.

"On the other hand, the British fleet is still adequate and is not only as strong as it was before the war, but absolutely and relatively stronger than ever."

The terms of the armistice stipulate that ten battleships, six battle cruisers, eight light cruisers, and fifty destroyers of the most modern type shall be given up.

The German cruiser Dresden was sunk off the Falkland Islands by the British under Admiral Sturdee, while the Emden was sunk in the Indian Ocean after it had raided shipping in the Far East. It is probable that old ships have received the names of the ships sunk or that new ships have been built to replace them.

GERMAN BANK DYNAMITED.

Fire Completes Destruction of Building in Peking.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—The German Asiatic Bank at Peking was dynamited by unknown persons late last week, says an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Tien-tsin.

The American Legation guard attempted to extinguish the fire which resulted, but the water supply was low, and it is believed the building will be a total wreck.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VRANJA, Serbia, Oct. 20, (via London, Nov. 17.)—Here is a story of cold-blooded butchery without equal even in this war. It is a tale of deliberate, systematic effort by the Bulgarians extending over three months to exterminate the national spirit of Serbia by killing every one in the parts of the country they occupied whom they thought capable of maintaining it.

To my mind the facts which I am about to relate are crimes which will earn for Bulgaria the odium of civilization. During these massacres the Germans, by contrast with the Bulgars, appeared to the inhabitants of Serbia as protectors and agents of mercy.

The small corner of Serbia in which I have gathered during the last three days from many different sources information and evidence which establishes Bulgarian guilt beyond all doubting is the region which lies around Vranja, between Kumanovo and Lesjovtz. Here, directly they had established themselves on Serbian soil, the Bulgars began to change the Serbians by force into Bulgarians.

After forbidding the use of the Serbian language, closing Serbian schools, compelling every one to change the ending of his name from the Serbian "itch" to the Bulgarian "off," and after installing Bulgarian Mayors, Bishops, Tax Collectors, and military police, they arrested in every town and village all men who belonged to what may be called the intellectual class. They chose parliamentary Deputies, Judges, teachers, lawyers, priests, and employers of labor, forming them into gangs, and marched them away. From that time until the defeated Bulgarians evacuated Serbia the other day the friends of these people had heard nothing of their fate, but now the ghastly story is known in detail.

Slaughtered 50 at a Time.

Men numbering at least 3,000 from the towns and villages of the Vranja region alone were taken in detachments of about 50 at a time to a place which the Bulgarians chose as their slaughter house, and there every night one party after another from December, 1915, to March, 1916, had their throats cut or were stabbed to death.

The village whose name the Bulgarians have made terrible is a small place called Surdulitza, twenty miles northeast of Vranja, near the Bulgarian frontier. I went there yesterday and saw the bones, the graves, and surviving relatives of 2,500 victims of Bulgarian savagery who there met their end.

Doomed men, against whom the Bulgarians had no other charge what-

WILSON SAILS IN 2 WEEKS

Will Outline Views on Peace Principles to Conference Delegates

HUGHES MAY BE MEMBER

Lansing, Baker, and Houston Mentioned as the Other American Representatives.

PRESIDENT TO STAY 4 WEEKS

Will Not Delegate His Powers as Chief Executive While Abroad, It Is Said.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—President Wilson is to go to Europe for the purpose of consulting representatives of the allied Governments with respect to the determination of the main features of the peace treaty. All doubt that the President would visit Europe was removed late this evening when an official statement was issued through the Committee on Public Information. [The text of the statement is printed in an adjoining column.]

Trip to be Made on Liner.

No further details of the prospective visit of the President were made known in an authoritative way, but the understanding is that the voyage across the Atlantic and return will be made on a large ocean liner, and that Mrs. Wilson and the official delegates of the United States to the peace conference will be on board. Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the President, and George Creel, Chairman of the Committee on Public Information, are expected to be of the party, which will include a large number of experts on international law and other related subjects.

As the official statement discloses, the names of the American delegation will be announced shortly. Information obtained today indicates that they will number four, and that three of them will be members of the Cabinet. One will be a prominent Republican of proved ability.

Opinion in informed quarters point to the personnel of the American delegates as follows: Robert Lansing, Secretary of State; Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War; David F. Houston, Secretary of Agriculture; Charles E. Hughes, former Governor of New York and former Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States.

The intimation conveyed today that Mr. Hughes would be chosen instead of William H. Taft or Elihu Root was a surprise. It was said that certain considerations had made Mr. Hughes the most conspicuous Republican available for selection.

Secretary Houston's name had not been brought forward before as a probable member of the American delegation. He is highly regarded by the President, particularly for the analytical quality of his mind. In the Cabinet differences over the Lusitania case, which resulted in the resignation of William Jennings Bryan from the office of Secretary of State, Mr. Houston stood with Lindley M. Garrison, then Secretary of War, and Franklin K. Lane, then, as now, Secretary of the Interior, for a firm attitude toward Germany in connection with her policy of sinking merchant ships without warning.

House May Represent the President.

The status of Colonel E. M. House, the President's friend, adviser, and emissary, in connection with the peace conference, is not yet disclosed authoritatively, but it is the belief in informed quarters, based perhaps on positive knowledge, that Colonel House will be the personal representative of the President at the place of meeting of the peace plenipotentiaries. In this capacity he would not be a member of the American delegation, and perhaps have no official status, but would serve as a connecting link between the President and the American delegation after the President's return to the United States.

In this connection Colonel House would give the President by cable the result of his personal observations of any situation as it arose, and would be able to communicate freely with the President on all aspects of the conference, including explanations of the individual attitude of members of the American delegation and the various foreign delegations.

The President, it is understood, will make an address to the assembled peace delegations of all the allied nations in which he will outline his views as to the broad principles which should be observed by the victorious Governments in dealing with Germany and the other Central Powers. This would be a "keynote speech," which would serve as the groundwork for the attitude of the American delegates throughout the conference and would be, in effect, an appeal to the other allied Governments to arrange a peace with the vanquished nations that would be in accord with general ideas of the President as the spokesman of the United States.

The official announcement makes clear that President Wilson does not intend to sit at the formal conference, when the delegates of Germany, Austria-Hungary, Turkey, and Bulgaria would be present, as a representative of this Government. His business with the conference will have been concluded, probably, before the peace conference proper assembles. The conference is not expected to assemble until after he has concluded his consultations with the allied delegations.

While the time for the assembling of the peace conference proper has not been announced, the arrangements that are being made for American participation are based on the understanding that it will take place in January, after the President has departed on his homeward voyage.

No announcement has been made as to the place for the sittings, but it has been practically determined that the sessions shall be held at Versailles, and it is here that the President will have his consultations with the representatives of the allied nations.

Will Decide Terms in Advance.

Before entering the peace conference with the delegates of the Central Powers the plenipotentiaries of the allied nations will determine upon the terms which they will exact from their defeated adversaries. It is in these preliminary consultations that the important work of arranging a treaty of peace will be done. President Wilson's appearance is to be timed for this period of allied preparation for dealing with the Central Powers. Congress will assemble for its next session on Monday, Dec. 2, and in accordance with custom the President will deliver his annual address on the state of the nation on the following day. He will sail for Europe shortly thereafter.

The period of the President's absence is estimated at from four to five weeks. This will mean that he will be in Europe or on his return journey to the United States at Christmas. It has been said by those who had some knowledge of what his program would be, if he decided to make the venture, that he would not be more than two weeks in Europe. Nothing has been disclosed since the official announcement was issued this evening to indicate that there has been any change in the program as so understood.

Officials pooh-pooh the suggestion that Mr. Wilson will be obliged to delegate his powers as President for the period of his absence beyond the territorial boundaries of the United States. Some of them said today that there was nothing in the Federal Constitution to require him to delegate his powers, and that, in fact, the Constitution was specific in enumerating the circumstances when the Vice President should assume the office of President and that the absence of the President from the country was not one of them.

It is evident from what was said that the President does not intend to delegate anybody to perform the duties of the Executive Office for the time he is out of the country, although, of course, he will arrange that certain matters which ordinarily require the attention of the President shall be attended to by officials connected with the Executive branch of the Government. Should bills be passed while the President is away they will either be allowed to become a law without his signature, it is assumed, or final Congressional action, such as the attests of the presiding officers of the Senate and the House, will be deferred until the President has returned to Washington. This latter arrangement will enable the President to make personal examination of the measures, to ascertain whether they contain any provisions which he disapproves.

McAdoo Senior Member of Cabinet.

Secretary McAdoo, the President's son-in-law, will be the senior officer of the Executive Government present in Washington during the President's absence. There will be no effort to compel the President to submit the names of the peace plenipotentiaries to the Senate for ratification. All agitation in this connection has practically disappeared. It was aimed particularly, if not exclusively, at the report that Colonel House would be one of the peace delegation.

The understanding prevailing in informed quarters that both Mr. Taft and Mr. Root had been eliminated from consideration for appointment on the peace commission causes surprise elsewhere. It was known that the President had decided to appoint at least one prominent member of the Republican Party as a peace delegate and the choice was believed to lie between Mr. Taft and Mr. Root. The appointment of either was considered as being particularly desirable from President Wilson's standpoint, for Mr. Taft was in thorough accord with the principle of the establishment of a League of Nations, to which the President is strongly committed, and Mr. Root was also understood to be in sympathy with the proposed international agreement.

There appeared to be reason to believe that Mr. Taft's name was being seriously considered; in fact, that his selection was virtually assured. Nothing to change this understanding came to light today. On the contrary, the impression was given that Mr. Taft would have been invited to be a member of the American Peace Commission if he had not taken issue recently with President Wilson's adherence to the famous fourteen points laid down by Mr. Wilson as fundamental to the proper settlement of the war.

The reason for the reported elimination of Mr. Root is not clear. It was, however, suggested in a quarter having knowledge of the considerations that have prevailed in determining questions affecting the peace conference that it was thought that objection might be made to Mr. Root as a peace plenipotentiary by those who believed that his appointment would not be satisfactory to many of the European Democrats who will have a large part in the determination of the future Government of some of the Continental countries.

President Wilson is particularly interested in the formation of a League of Nations to prevent future wars and in having an international definition of "the freedom of the seas." Opinion is general here in the best informed Government and legislative quarters that these matters could not be determined at the peace conference, but, as they affect all nations, they must be considered at a subsequent conference to which all neutral countries would be invited.

There is a growing tendency in Washington to believe that while there might be an agreement on the part of most of the Governments on the principle of the formation of a League of Nations it would be impossible to provide a practical working arrangement. This view prevails in official as well as legislative circles. France is opposed to the League of Nations proposal, but many influential British statesmen are convinced that an agreement could be reached that would be entirely feasible.

Legislators' Views of Trip.

The President's contemplated trip caused much interest among members of Congress. There had been a strong belief for days that Mr. Wilson would go to the conference, but his actual decision was not made known until today. Some of the expressions among Senators were:

Senator Hitchcock, Democrat, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee—It will give emphasis to the things the President stands for. It is entirely in accord with precedent that the head of a country should meet the heads of the other countries interested. I understand the heads of countries interested met at the Vienna Conference in the early part of the last century—the conference that ended the Napoleonic wars.

Senator Watson, Republican of Indiana—With the many important duties of the President in this country, it appears to me he might well remain here. With the many American diplomats of great ability and wide experience who, intrusted by the President, could have rendered great service at the peace table and fully protected all the rights, as well as for the future of the Allies in mind, I cannot escape the conviction that the President's unbounded personal ambitions have much to do with his determination to go to France.

Senator Hoke Smith, Democrat, of Georgia—Of course it is a most unusual trip, but this conference is the most important and unusual ever held. I am glad that the President will be present. I believe his information will be most valuable, and will contribute to the future welfare of the foreign countries of the world, as well as to that of the United States, which is the leading nation of the world.

Senator Sheppard, Democrat, of Texas—The decision of the President to go to the peace conference is in every way proper. I am glad he has made the decision to go.

Senator Kenyon, Republican, of Iowa—I think the President has done enough hard work to have a little vacation.

Nothing has been disclosed in any official way as to what the plans of the President are for the period of his stay abroad except that he is expected to be at the place of the meeting of the peace conference for not more than two weeks. The belief prevails in Washington, however, that the President will find it necessary to visit England, and among those who are satisfied that he cannot well decline to go there the opinion is expressed that he will be obliged as a mere matter of courtesy and to avoid seeming discrimination to make a visit to Italy.

PRESS COMMENT ON TRIP.

Sharp Differences of Opinion on President's Purpose.

Following are the editorial views of some of the prominent newspapers of the country as stated in this morning's issues:

New York World—The announced determination of the President to go abroad for the peace conference will be generally regretted throughout the country. We cannot but feel that the President is making a grave mistake from any point of view in deciding finally to remove himself so far from the seat of the Government he is charged with administering, in a still critical or crowded time, for purposes which can better be served where he is.

New York Herald—It is only natural that official Washington should be indulging itself in speculation concerning the scope of that paragraph of the Constitution of the United States which provides that the Vice President shall assume control in the event of the President's "inability to perform the duties" of the Presidency.

Baltimore Sun—For ourselves, we can see possibilities of great good in the President's decision. The kind of peace that Mr. Wilson wants is, we believe, the kind that will be best for the world. He wields an influence greater in some respects than that of any other statesman of any country. That influence is due partly to himself, partly to the position he occupies, but, most of all, to the fact that America has no selfish interests in this war, but is, indeed, in a position where its own interests demand a settlement based purely on equal justice for all.

Chattanooga Times—The President has decided to attend the peace conference in person. * * * We take it that he has found strong and sufficient reasons for his decision for he surely would not otherwise take a step in opposition to recently expressed popular protests against his going.

Hartford Courant—True, they [cobelligerents] are all under obligation to us for food, for billions of money, for soldiers. But, if we cannot even call ourselves allies, we cannot have much to say about the new map of Europe. Interference there might look like entangling alliance. The conference will be a great occasion, but with Colonel House there, what need of Wilson?

Springfield Republican—It is a bold decision which the President takes, but even those who for widely different reasons have been doubtful as to the wisdom of the step will perhaps agree that he is in a better position than the public to measure the urgency of the need for it.

Boston Globe—The President's decision to go to the peace conference is necessary. He cannot divest himself of his authority. He cannot well delegate it. The Prime Ministers of the allied nations will be there. America elects her Prime Minister and calls him President. It is fitting that he should be there.

Boston Herald—President Wilson has never regarded precedent. * * * No other President has left American soil, we are speaking with substantial accuracy, but he now proposes to do so. He is leaving behind him gigantic tasks of wartime reconstruction, but he doubtless feels that he is doing so in order to participate in even larger ones.

Detroit Free Press—If Mr. Wilson goes to the peace conference as a delegate, America would sooner or later almost certainly be accused of an endeavor to unduly dominate the situation and impose its will and its ways upon the remainder of the earth, and though other allied Governments might yield with outward grace and even smilingly, the thing would rankle.

Providence Journal—The President's decision to go abroad is a grave error of judgment. It is unseemly that we should have at the conference a representative outranking in official position any other man there present.

Cincinnati Commercial Gazette—President Wilson's determination to attend personally the peace conference may be a violation of accepted precedent, but the conference itself is unprecedented in its importance, marking a new and grander epoch in the political and social history of the world. As the author of the code of principles upon which the new peace is to be based, his immediate personal leadership in the formulation is most desirable.

Portland Oregonian—The visit of President Wilson to France to be present at the opening of the peace conference would be unparalleled in so far as it would violate precedent, but there are no legal obstacles and his attendance would be symbolical rather than of practical effect.

Louisville Courier-Journal—The most important business the United States has ever had will be transacted at Versailles in December and January. The head of the American Government, expressly empowered to deal with its foreign affairs, is the President. Instead of trying to discuss over the cables the fundamentals and primaries of the peace conference, Mr. Wilson has very sensibly decided to go to France and personally see to them. * * * If it were not necessary for him to go, the country may be sure that he would not.

Buffalo Express—This departure from the country during the President's term of office violates precedents but the occasion is extraordinary. * * * If the President is unwilling to delegate independent authority to the American commissioners to represent the United States according to their own judgment, it is certainly much better that he should attend the conference in person.

Buffalo Courier—The reason why President Wilson, the author of the peace basis, is needed at the peace conference are those of world statesmanship in a vital time of history. They are not political.

Los Angeles Times—President Wilson would depart from all diplomatic precedent, both in leaving this country during his term of office and attending as a principal a conference where every other nation will be represented by diplomats only, but if he can aid in framing a peace treaty which will put an end to fighting among peoples without surrendering national integrity and involving our country in entangling economic alliances, he will perform a service that is worth more than all the precedents of history. Wilson and Root form an ideal combination to represent our Republic.

Memphis Commercial Appeal—If President Wilson wants to take a short trip abroad the journey might not be amiss. He could go on a fast cruiser, spend a week in England and a week in France, and be back in thirty days. But as a delegate to the conference, we think the presence of President Wilson would be impolitic. The other delegates would not be in his class.

Richmond Times-Dispatch—The President is adopting a course contrary to the best judgment of the people as reflected in a recent poll of leading newspapers and public men. However, if the arguments against his attendance are not weighty enough to restrain him he will be assured of a triumphal reception. * * * Such a visit could be staged with more safety and with better grace after the peace terms have been signed.

SEDAN CAMPAIGN TAKES HIGH RANK

EARLY DOUBTS SILENCED

Allies Trust Wilson's Lead in Seeking to Avoid Reaction in Germany.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 18.—It is now widely recognized that General Pershing's campaign for Sedan was one of the best prepared and executed of the whole war. In the early stages there was much European criticism growing out of three things. First, Pershing was adamant in his refusal to entertain suggestions for parceling out the American army; second, he dispensed with European training at the end of August and substituted American; third, in his last battle his staff work was all American.

In the early stages of the "Battle of the Wilderness," Paris was agog with adverse opinion and comment, but when the American troops occupied Sedan the tune changed.

This last battle was one of the hardest and one of the most successful fought in this war. When Pershing's final objectives were reached a week ago, everyone on the inside knew that Germany's acceptance of the armistice terms was a foregone conclusion.

There are many interesting items in the time tables of the mines and bombs turned over to the Allies by the Germans. For example, it had been arranged to blow up the railway stations at Cambrai and Ostend, and the time fuses were set for Tuesday of this week. In another case a time fuse was set for the middle of next January.

In driving to Foch's headquarters and back to Paris on Tuesday we remarked that the war was already fading out the day after the armistice was signed. We encountered few soldiers, and most of these were working in the fields. The French are a businesslike people, and despite their huge losses the process of recuperation will be swift.

In all American circles here the end of the war brings the deepest gratification. After it became clear a few weeks ago that Germany was definitely and certainly beaten, there was poignant anxiety lest the lives of our soldiers be needlessly sacrificed. One could take the losses philosophically when they were required to save the world, but every American killed or wounded in the last few days seemed a needless sacrifice.

Americans here feel that President Wilson shortened the war and saved thousands of lives by dividing Germany. Without that division, the war might have gone on for months, for the German Army might have been kept in the fight with a united country behind it. Furthermore, Americans think that Wilson foresaw the present conditions and sought to safeguard against them. The more thoughtful elements are now pondering along like lines.

In pure selfishness, from the Entente viewpoint, it is desirable to see some kind of permanent order in Germany. First, we want somebody to deal with and some central authority to carry out the peace programs and enforce payment of the indemnities. Second, dependable government in Germany will be a breakwater against the tide of Bolshevism which is sweeping over Europe. It is hoped that Germany may be promptly and soundly established as a republic, and it is believed that the effect will be to stabilize central Europe.

The paramount question having suddenly ceased to be German military aggression, and Bolshevism and anarchy having become paramount, the President's general policy, which his latest speech to Congress reaffirms, furnishes safe leadership. The defeated peoples should not and the victorious peoples think they will not be subjected to famine without a rebellion.

From one end of Europe to the other there is a ferment in varying degrees. After fifty months of war, a high state of tension is inevitable. Only broad, humane, and restrained leadership can prevent disaster and assure the goal of ordered peace.

Germany has surrendered on terms that place her absolutely at the mercy of the victors. The only limit to what may be done to or with her is some excess containing the danger of reaction, committed in the heat of resentment for her barbarities, that may violate justice and compromise the moral superiority of the Allies. The masses of the Allies are with President Wilson in his policies as they understand them, and look to him to restrain the passions engendered by war and hold the world steady against the new menaces which have arisen.

EX-KAISER TO GO BACK.

Reds Learn of Plan — Ex-Empress Said to Have Fled in Airplane.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—The Potsdam Soldiers' and Workmen's Committee learns that William Hohenzollern intends to return to Germany because of disturbances in Holland, a Copenhagen dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company states. The Lokal-Anzeiger of Berlin says that he is likely to be permitted to return.

Prince Eitel Friedrich, son of the former Emperor, has appealed to his comrades of the Potsdam garrison to place themselves at the disposal of the new Government in Germany.

The former German Empress has arrived in Holland, making the trip by airplane, according to the Zevenaar correspondent of the Amsterdam Telegraaf.

A dispatch from Maarn, Holland, says that Count Charles von Bentinck, son of Count Godard von Bentinck, in an interview on Saturday, asserted that his father was unaware of the intended coming of the German Emperor until the preceding Sunday, when the Dutch Government telephoned asking him if he would receive the exile. The Count acceded as a duty to the Dutch Government.

The former Emperor's host seemed somewhat embarrassed over the delicate charge given to him, as his family has considerable English connections. Count Charles said that he asked the former Emperor:

"Well, how long will you remain?"

"That depends upon the Dutch Government," was the reply.

There are no indications that the former Crown Prince intends to join his father.

OUR ARMY NEAR GERMANY

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Fed by Needy Belgians.

The feeling of America's army of liberty was even more kindly toward the Belgians when a released American coming into our lines told how the civilians had freely given of their small stock of food to weary doughboys. Chickens hidden from the Germans had been brought out, wine dug up from back yards where it had been hidden for four years—all for the Americans. Americans say they were treated fairly well by the Germans, except they were underfed.

Numbers of Germans were still entering our lines today, having lingered behind when the army withdrew. They were in all cases turned back at bayonet point. At one place 200 Germans who had been on the Eastern front and had fraternized with the Bolsheviki were left behind, being told that the Americans would take them prisoners. They were sent scurrying up the road by our men with sharp instructions to overtake their command, or at least not let the Americans overtake them again.

The strictest orders have been issued to American soldiers against fraternizing with Germans. Our commanders are growing suspicious of the growing number of Germans seeking to be taken prisoners.

Suffering of Our Wounded.

Returning Americans say that wounded soldiers, taken by the Germans, suffered tortures. There was a great shortage of medical supplies.

The Americans said that amputations were made without anaesthetics. One youth, brought in by three others, had had his arm amputated, and the wound was covered with a paper bandage. This had been changed once in fourteen days, and then a comrade had torn off a dirty paper bandage and wrapped a handkerchief about the stump.

Americans whom I talked with said they were treated about the same as other allied prisoners.

The country through which we are moving shows few traces of war. Trenches, barbed wire, shell holes, and levelled towns are all nowhere seen. Unused fields, dirty streets, looted houses, and scarcity of civilians are about all that tell of the four years' curse which has rested upon it.

Four divisions have joined the six that started first, so the Army of Occupation comprises the 1st, 2d, 3d, 4th, 5th, 26th, 32d, 42d, 89th, and 90th Divisions.

Flares of Explosions.

Nov. 17.—With their faces turned toward the Rhine, American patrols are pacing back and forth along a fifty-mile front from near Florenville down to beyond Conflans. All is quiet. Off at a distance now and then a flare tells the story of the Germans destroying ammunition and supplies that they cannot take home with them. But should the German Army turn around and start to fight again it would find more than 200,000 of the best fighting men on tiptoe to meet them.

Traveling along this front today seemed uncanny. It seemed as if some big factor was lacking, seemed like a sham play. There were men in fighting trim going up the roads with measured step, with patrols in front. There were lumbering cannon groaning on their way forward. There were ammunition trains and ambulances along the roadways.

It looked like war but was not war. It was the armistice movement of the Americans, advancing, ready, should the armistice be ended at any moment.

What makes the march exciting is not the marching itself but the towns the troops reach and what they see. Of all the things seen, of all the celebrations and tears of joy of the delivered French people, of the cries of little children and the prayers of aged priests, of all the things one could see in Montmédy today, the most striking was the constant stream of released prisoners of war and French civilians coming back from Germany.

Gratitude of the French.

One can well imagine the feelings of the French who see friendly troops marching through their released towns and who, coming back from enforced labor for the departed enemy, meet the brown-clad lads who have words of cheer and shouts of comfort and white bread to give them. One may well understand that Americans are forever enshrined in their hearts as men of men.

But more interesting to me were the hundreds of American doughboys coming among their own today. Can one picture anything more dramatic than this?—up the road just outside Montmédy this morning a company of the 6th Marines was marching to the tune of a mouth organ played by a six-foot-two soldier from Brooklyn, when around the corner came one more group of released prisoners. He who played the mouth organ looked at the men bound the other way, squinted again, dropped his mouth organ and leaped forward to knock a German prison cap off the head of a returning and weary doughboy and swung both arms about him. It was his Sergeant, whom he thought killed two months ago.

There were a hundred doughboys in the group, and a nondescript lot they were, underfed and showing it, and wearing anything that would keep them warm. Just to show how many divisions of American doughboys the enemy has to fight to get 100 prisoners I took pains to find what divisions this hundred came from. Here they are:

First, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Twenty-sixth, Thirty-third, Forty-second, Seventy-seventh, Seventy-eighth, Seventy-ninth, Eightieth, Eighty-first, Eighty-second, Eighty-ninth, and Ninetieth Divisions, First Army Ordnance, and Fifty-sixth Engineers.

Captured Americans Struck.

Some of them had been put to work at Montmédy, but struck one morning when they were sent out to repair a hole that American guns had made in an important railroad. For that they had been sent further back.

Two doughboys, exhausted from lack of food, were lying in an old carry-all with wobbly wheels. Four other doughboys were pulling it. Asked how far they had come, the reply of a man who had counted the kilometer posts was that they had trekked forty-two kilometers, (twenty-five miles.) An ambulance relieved them of the load and took all six back to American Headquarters.

All escaped prisoners and returning civilians are being subjected to the closest scrutiny and examination because there is good reason to suppose the Germans have a plan to get a certain element back of American lines. Details of this cannot be given at this time.

Evidence is accumulating that the Germans are stripping the land as they go back. Even food distributed by the American relief is "requisitioned."

Incidentally, one would never form an idea of the scope of American relief work unless he could make the trip I took today. I asked civilians in village after village how they fared for food. In every instance the reply came back that they would have starved but for the aid from the United States.

REACH ST. LEGER, BELGIUM.

Americans Also Enter Briey, in Heart of Iron Basin.

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES OF OCCUPATION, Nov. 18, (Associated Press.)—The forward movement into Belgium halted at 3 o'clock this afternoon, when the advancing elements of the second division entered St. Leger. A detachment of cavalry first entered. This was followed a few minutes later by the commanding officer and the staff in cars.

A crowd of citizens had gathered in the streets and began rolling up the shutters of the little shops. The church bells were rung, and the Mayor and his wife came out in front of their home and welcomed the officers and correspondents and invited them to become the Mayor's guests. Women, children, and aged men crowded about the soldiers, embracing them and presenting flowers.

Pershing's men also received a warm welcome from the residents of Virton, northeast of Montmedy, the largest city in Belgium they reoccupied. Scenes of enthusiasm have greeted the troops from overseas in every village through which they have passed.

The Germans are withdrawing as rapidly as possible. In the towns now occupied by the Americans great stores, including machine guns, cannon, and ammunition have been found. At Telancourt there is a big airdrome, but most of the planes left were in a damaged condition, some of them apparently intentionally damaged. The hood of one machine had been pierced by a dozen pistol shots, probably in an endeavor to injure the engine.

The American troops entered Briey, the heart of the Lorraine iron fields, at 11 o'clock this morning. There were arches across the main street and the town was bedecked with flags. Fifteen hundred civilians greeted the troops.

After a welcome by the Briey officials, the 38th Infantry Band of the 3d Division gave a concert. Then the Americans lunched from rolling kitchens, a large number of released Russians also being fed.

Outwardly Briey showed few indications of the war, the buildings being intact, but there were German signs everywhere, pointing in the direction of ammunition dumps and the various headquarters.

On a decorated arch, under which the Americans passed, was a home-made American flag four feet in length flanked by the French colors. The flag, which had been made by three French girls, had eleven stars and seven red and white stripes.

Before the war the population of Briey numbered about 2,500. Civilians employed in the mines by the Germans received pay of four to six francs a day. The people of Briey did not have any particular complaints to make of the treatment by the Germans during the last two years, but for the first two years they had different stories to tell of the brutalities they suffered.

The Germans abandoned a large number of trucks and portable dynamos in Briey, owing to their haste to withdraw their troops.

Smoke streaming from the chimneys of many mines greeted the advancing Americans early this morning, for a number of mines were in actual operation, and there were fires under the boilers in other mines so as to keep the pumps going. Several mines had been flooded by seepage, having been idle for two or three years. The Germans had removed the machinery for other purposes.

Most of the mines had been operated until last week, when the Germans began to release the Russians and others who had been employed in this work.

Miles and miles of campfires betrayed the presence of the army on the hillsides and in the valleys last night. The lessened need of caution caused the men to abandon the custom of shielding their fires, and instead of the miniature affairs previously allowed there appeared thousands of fires, some of which approached the proportions of celebrative bonfires.

The march into Belgium was made from Ecouviez, just on the French side of the border. Advance patrols of the army had camped there, with Major Gen. Lejeune's Second Division at Montmedy. The men went over the frontier line just after dawn. Lamorteau, just over the line, was the first village occupied. It is a tiny place with few inhabitants, but those few welcomed the Americans with the same fervor with which their countrymen greeted their own soldiers a few days ago.

From Lamorteau the line moved up the road to Virton, where many civilians remained. Their joy at seeing the Americans was unrestrained.

The entire progress to Briey and Virton was accomplished without any untoward incident, the Germans apparently acting in good faith in accordance with the armistice.

Among the prisoners who re-entered the lines between noon Saturday and noon Sunday were 204 Americans, from sixteen different American organizations. They had been captured about Oct. 15 in the vicinity of Landres-et-St. Georges. They had not been treated with great severity, although they said they had fared better at the hands of the Saxons and Württembergers than at those of the Prussians. The total number of Americans who have re-entered the lines since the armistice was declared is 244.

The accounts of conditions in Germany brought in by both returned civilians and prisoners of war afford further indications of the enormous pressure that had been brought upon the Prussians to effect peace. It was said to be common talk among the Saxons, Württembergers and Bavarians that unless the Government brought about peace by Christmas they would see to it themselves.

MAJOR EWELL LED ADVANCE.

Virginian Commanded 1st Division's Vanguard at Start.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN LORRAINE, Nov. 17, (Associated Press.)—The start of the Americans across the lines at 5:30 o'clock Sunday morning was made in the face of the coldest weather of the season.

The vanguard of the First Division reached the American outposts near Abaucourt, on the road running northeast from Verdun, at 9 o'clock Saturday night. The outpost on this road, leading to Etain, was commanded by Lieutenant A. C. Dick of Hartsville, S. C., of the Third Infantry, Sixth Division. Major J. Ewell of Lexington, Va., who commanded the vanguard, arrived just ahead of his troops and showed Lieutenant Dick the orders to advance the following morning.

On the Major's asking where the division could camp for the night, Lieutenant Dick replied that the men could make themselves comfortable on several acres of flats just on the American side of No Man's Land. Tents were pitched and in a few hours the men were asleep.

Reveille at 4:30 o'clock in the morning was the signal for a great scramble among the infantrymen for their coffee and to complete the details of their preparations for starting forward. At 5:30 o'clock, Major Ewell placed himself at the head of the vanguard and the column moved ahead. No flags were flying, no bugles were sounded, and no bands were playing. The infantrymen flapped their arms to keep warm. Here and there was heard the voice of an officer giving a command. Then came the tramp of the soldiers and the chugging of the automobiles forming part of the advancing column.

GERMANS GIVING UP GUNS.

Formal Deliveries to Americans at Bouligny and Spincourt.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY NORTHEAST OF VERDUN, Nov. 18, (Associated Press.)—Twenty-two large-calibre guns and great stores of lumber, barbed wire, and various kinds of materials used by engineers were formally turned over to the Americans by the Germans today at Bouligny. Much of the material is new.

When the Americans entered Bouligny they were met by Lieutenant William Schmidt of the artillery and Lieutenant Carl Schling of the pioneers. Both carried arms and white flags. Each German officer had an orderly, all four speaking English learned in German schools.

After receiving receipts, the officers started for Luxemburg to join their own forces, Schmidt and his orderly traveling in a two-wheeled cart, and Schling and his orderly proceeding with bicycles.

Two 16-inch cannon, which were turned over to the Americans at Spincourt on Saturday, were guns used by the Germans to shell the Verdun region. Forty-two guns of various calibres were delivered. The 16-inch guns were taken apart by the Germans into three sections, each section being drawn by a tractor.

The entrance of the Americans into Spincourt on Saturday was one of the most spectacular features of the American advance. Although the details of the American plans had been communicated by wireless to the Germans, the carrying out of the schedule was delayed. The Americans were expected at Spincourt at 10 o'clock, but did not arrive until 2 in the afternoon because of roads which had been shattered by shellfire.

Lieutenant Emmet Gruner of St. Louis represented the First Army, with Lieutenant Robert Nicolson of Salisbury, N. C., going as artillery expert to see that the guns were all in good condition. The Lieutenants were accompanied by an infantry Sergeant and four privates. Lieutenant Gruner, the Sergeant, and one private went ahead in an automobile carrying a white flag. Lieutenant Nicolson and the other privates followed. Upon reaching the outskirts of Spincourt they were met by a lone German Lieutenant who spoke English. He conducted the Americans to the village hotel, where billets had been provided. After saying he was glad to see them and expressing his relief that his responsibility was past, the German said:

As the Americans entered Spincourt the rearguards of German divisions which had held the place were just withdrawing, the Germans rejoicing as they marched away. A few artillerymen were pottering around the big guns as if they dreaded leaving their pets behind. All the cannon were camouflaged and some had names. One eight-inch gun was named Martha and had a prominent place on the front line.

The German Lieutenant escorted the Americans to the hotel and endeavored to make them comfortable. Lieutenant Nicolson and the German began checking the guns and continued the work until dark. Then the German entertained the two Lieutenants at dinner. The German continued wearing his sidearms until after dinner, the Americans also wearing theirs.

After dinner the German said that he thought that he did not need arms, but remarked that he had felt nervous during the afternoon after the German infantry had retreated, as he was uncertain as to what the Americans might do.

All three officers took off their sidearms and spent the night at the hotel. The German slept on the first floor and the Americans directly above. They had breakfast together and finished checking the guns, after which Lieutenant Gruner gave the German a receipt for them.

Just before noon the German ordered the hotel to serve chocolate and began packing up his effects. He told the Americans that 3,500 machine guns awaited them in Longuyon. Two orderlies brought up his horse, and, tucking the receipt into an inside pocket, the enemy officer mounted, saying good-bye. Then he added:

"I hope my troubles are over for a while. I hope to forget all about guns and war and battlefields forever."

He rode away, his orderlies following him in a horse-drawn cart.

PROCLAIMS POWER TO SEIZE CABLES

TO INSURE CO-OPERATION

ATTACKED BY MACKAY

He Sees in Seizure "a March Toward Government Ownership"—Cites Objections.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—It transpired today that a proclamation signed by President Wilson Nov. 2 placing all marine cables under the control of the Government, with the Postmaster General as administrator, was published Saturday night on an inside page of the Official Bulletin issued by the Committee on Public Information. The newspapers were not notified of the proclamation, which provides that the Government control shall last until the President has proclaimed the exchange of ratifications of the treaty of peace.

Antagonism Between Companies.

Antagonism and lack of co-operation between the two great American-owned ocean cable companies were declared today in high quarters to have necessitated the Government taking over all the marine cables. It was represented that there had been a total absence of mutual aid on the part of the companies, and that, in consequence, hundreds of messages were piled up on each side of the Atlantic Ocean awaiting transmission. It was also said that because of the jealousy of the companies toward each other the Government had found it practically impossible under private control to arrange direct and immediate lines to France, over which are now almost constantly following diplomatic messages.

It was stated today, as an instance of the bad feeling of the cable companies toward each other, that when the personnel of one company's Irish cable landing office was ravaged by influenza and the other company's American landing station was hard hit by a sleet storm, the two companies would not co-operate to relieve the situation.

Postmaster General Burleson will issue a formal statement tomorrow, detailin the troubles of the Government with the cable companies. He had a long conference today with Judge William H. Lamar, Solicitor of the Post Office Department; John C. Koons, First Assistant Postmaster General, and David J. Lewis, who has become allied with the department since the Government took over the control of telegraphs and telephones.

Officials at the department would make no statement for publication today regarding the attitude toward the telegraph companies, but one officer said privately that the Government felt no fear of the public's judgment when all the facts were made known.

Result of Red Tape.

When asked today why newspapers had not been notified of the appearance of the proclamation the Committee on Public Information explained that usually when proclamations dealing with a certain subject were handed by the State Department to the Official Bulletin, the committee was asked by the other Government Department especially affected to notify the newspapers. Usually the special department issued a statement explaining in plain language the effect of the often technical proclamation. In the case of the cable control, it appears, no such request was made. The Committee on Public Information appeared to believe that it was incumbent upon the Post Office Department to notify the newspapers. The Post Office Department said that this step should have been undertaken by the State Department. One official said: "The proclamation was two weeks old, anyway." He seemed to consider that sufficient excuse for the lack of publicity.

In a short time, perhaps synchronously with the statement promised for tomorrow dealing with the actuating motives for taking over the cables, the Post Office Department will issue a reply to the allegations of Clarence H. Mackay, President of the Postal Telegraph-Cable Company and the Commercial Cable Company, that the Government compensation agreed upon for the Western Union Telegraph Company is "much more than that the telegraph company is earning from month to month," and that the Government may lose $2,326,668 on this agreement for the fiscal year. The Post Office Department is now calculating the compensation for the Postal Company, and this figure may be announced at any moment.

MACKAY SUSPECTS MOTIVE.

Sees in Cable Seizure "a March Toward Government Ownership."

Clarence H. Mackay, President of the Postal Telegraph Company and the Commercial Cable Company, yesterday reiterated his belief that Governmental control of the cables would be unwise at this juncture, and said the contemplated seizure of the cables appeared to be "a preliminary march toward Government ownership." The cables had not actually been taken over by the Government at a late hour last night.

"The proposed action is incomprehensible to me," said Mr. Mackay. "The very vastness of the proposition is staggering. For illustration, we have a cable 10,000 miles long, from San Francisco to China, Japan, and Manila. What could the Government do with that? The Central & South American Cable Company has cables from New York through the Panama Canal and away down the west shore of South America and across the mountains to the Argentine Republic. What could the Government do with that, and why should it want it?

"Then there is the Atlantic system of seventeen transatlantic cables, which the Government proposes to take over, six of which are British-owned and are merely leased to the Western Union. Who knows but that serious complications might arise in connection with these foreign-owned cables?

"All the cables are now worked to their utmost speed, and by the most expert management, and it is simply impossible to get anything more out of them. If we still had three or four years of war before us, there might be some sense in the Government exercising some degree of supervision over the handling of these vast cable systems, but everybody believes that the terms of peace will be worked out within two, or at most three months, and, furthermore, the Navy Department has been exercising censorship, and is continuing to do so. Why, then, does the Government want to seize these cables for such a short time?

"It will merely disorganize the systems," continued Mr. Mackay, "and undoubtedly will be a heavy expense to the Government. No good can come of it. Apparently, the proposition is merely the reverberation of the action of the Government in taking over the land telegraph lines on Aug. 1, 1918, when the war was in full swing. That emergency has now passed, and there is no reason for the Government to seize these vast cable systems.

"There is certainly no element of 'national security and defense' in taking over these cables now, when the war is over; and yet that was the sole purpose of the joint resolution under which the Postmaster General is to take over these cables. Moreover, it has been intimated to me that there is serious doubts if the courts would uphold the action of the Government in seizing these cable systems under the war power after an armistice has been entered into. The whole move would appear to be a preliminary march toward Government ownership."

Inquiry at the offices of the Western Union and the Commercial Cable Company brought assertions that both companies were fast catching up with the accumulation of messages piled up when the cable staffs were depleted by influenza. According to William J. Deegan, Secretary of the Mackay Company, a holding corporation which directs the Commercial Cable Company, this organization is operating its full equipment of five Atlantic cables at maximum. Mr. Deegan said that last week, in addition to a reduced cable force, trouble with the land wires at both ends of the cables had hampered prompt transmission. All causes contributory to delay, however, were now removed, he said, and messages were going forward as fast as offered.

In speaking of the capacity of the five cables which his company is employing, Mr. Deegan said each cable was capable of carrying 180 letters a minute, or an average of thirty words a minute. These cables operated continuously for twenty-four hours would permit the transmission of 216,000 words. Speaking of the special cable which the company had reserved for the use of the Government in connection with the Peace Conference, a cable which will establish a direct connection between the State Department and the American Embassy in Paris, Mr. Deegan said that this cable line also would be used for commercial purposes during the intervals when the Government was not employing it.

It was stated that the Western Union cable system between this country and Europe consisted of eight cables, each of approximately the same capacity as the Commercial Company's lines. A statement that several of the Western Union cables were out of use because of a break in midocean could not be officially confirmed through Newcomb Carlton, President of the company. It was said, however, that the Western Union was experiencing no difficulty in handling transmission, that the situation was now good and would continue to improve. In support of its ability to handle business, the Western Union announced restoration of its transatlantic service, but added that accepted messages would perhaps be subjected to slight delay.

By the President of the United States of America.

A Proclamation.

Whereas, The Congress of the United States, in the exercise of the constitutional authority vested in them, by joint resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, bearing date July 16, 1918, resolved:

"That the President, during the continuance of the present war, is authorized and empowered, whenever he shall deem it necessary for the national security or defense, to supervise or take possession and assume control of any telegraph, telephone, marine cable, or radio system or systems, or any part thereof, and to operate the same in such manner as may be needful or desirable for the duration of the war, which supervision, possession, control, or operation shall not extend beyond the date of the proclamation by the President of the exchange of ratifications of the treaty of peace;

Provided, that just compensation shall be made for such supervision, possession, control, or operation, to be determined by the President; and if the amount thereof, so determined by the President, is unsatisfactory to the person entitled to receive the same, such person shall be paid 75 per cent. of the amount so determined by the President, and shall be entitled to sue the United States to recover such further sum as, added to said 75 per cent., will make up such amount as will be just compensation therefor, in the manner provided for by Section 24, Paragraph 20, and Section 145 of the Judicial Code.

Provided, further, that nothing in this act shall be construed to amend, repeal, impair, or affect existing laws or powers of the several States in relation to taxation or the lawful police regulations of the several States, except wherein such laws, powers, or regulations may affect the transmission of Government communications or the issue of stocks and bonds by such system or systems;

And, whereas it is deemed necessary for the national security and defense to supervise and to take possession and assume control of all marine cable systems, and to operate the same in such manner as may be needful or desirable:

Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States, under and by virtue of the powers vested in me by the foregoing resolution, and by virtue of all other powers thereto enabling me, do hereby take possession and assume control and supervision of each and every marine cable system and every part thereof owned or controlled and operated by any company or companies organized and existing under the laws of the United States, or any State thereof, including all equipment thereof and appurtenances thereto, whatsoever, and all materials and supplies.

It is hereby directed that the supervision, possession, control, and operation of such marine cable systems hereby by me undertaken shall be exercised by and through the Postmaster General, Albert S. Burleson. Said Postmaster General may perform the duties hereby and hereunder imposed upon him, so long and to such extent and in such manner as he shall determine, through the owners, managers, Boards of Directors, receivers, officers, and employes of said marine cable systems.

Until and except so far as said Postmaster General shall from time to time by general or special orders otherwise provide, the owners, managers, Boards of Directors, receivers, officers, and employes of the various marine cable systems shall continue the operation thereof in the usual and ordinary course of the business of said systems, in the names of their respective companies, associations, organizations, owners, or managers, as the case may be.

Regular dividends hitherto declared and maturing interest upon bonds, debentures, and other obligations may be paid in due course, and such regular dividends and interest may continue to be paid until and unless the said Postmaster General shall from time to time otherwise by general or special orders determine; and, subject to the approval of said Postmaster General, the various marine cable systems may determine upon and arrange for the renewal and extension of maturing obligations.

From and after 12 o'clock midnight on the 2d day of November, 1918, all marine cable systems included in this order and proclamation shall conclusively be deemed within the possession and control and under the supervision of said Postmaster General without further act or notice.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done by the President, in the District of Columbia, this 2d day of November in the year of Our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eighteen, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and forty-third.

WOODROW WILSON.

ROBERT LANSING, Secretary of State.

PREPARE TO FIGHT OWNERSHIP MOVE

COUNT ON SOME DEMOCRATS

Friction Develops with Attempt by Progressives to Limit Power of Regulars.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—A fight against Government ownership of express, telegraph, cable, and railroad systems as a permanent outcome of the control taken over during the war is to be launched by Republican Senators. The initial step was taken today, when it was announced that a conference to consider a plan of action would be held tomorrow by Republican leaders.

Interest was added to this development by the making public today of the proclamation issued by the President in preparation for the taking over by the Government of the ocean cable systems. This proclamation, although signed on Nov. 2, to take effect immediately, was never heard of by the public until Sunday last, after the publication in "The Official Bulletin" on Saturday.

The Republicans expect to have the support of so-called Progressive Republican and not a few independent Democratic Senators. At the Capitol a strong sentiment against what was characterized as a tendency toward State socialism was expressed.

Under Republican plans as now outlined, the reconstruction of public utilities would be worked out under the Cummins measure, which would supersede the program embraced in the Weeks-Overman measure. This would provide for eight committees to take control of all unscrambling, these to comprise an equal number of Republican and Democratic members of both houses. The control would be vested with the Republicans, who, under the reorganization of Congress, will be the dominant party.

Republican leaders in Congress are convinced that the controlling forces in the Democratic Party want to put public utilities permanently under Government ownership. Assertions were made at the Capitol that the Democrats intended making Government ownership a fixed party principle upon which to go before the voters in the 1920 Presidential and Congressional elections. This, Republican leaders said, under the reconstruction program launched by them, would be blocked. More than one Democratic Senator expressed himself today as opposed to Government ownership and as willing to back the Republican leaders in their effort to head it off.

Another phase of political friction developed today, when Senator Norris, Progressive Republican of Nebraska, put in a resolution to amend the Senate rules so that no Chairman of any committee on reconstruction may be a member of any other committees. These eight committees are Finance, Military Affairs, Foreign Relations, Appropriations, Interstate Commerce, Judiciary, Naval Affairs, and Post Offices. It is contended that under the Norris resolution it would be impossible to pack committees with influential leaders.

This combat among the Progressive and regular Republicans, it was said at the Capitol, threatens to bring about an awkward situation in the control of the next Congress, although the opinion was expressed that the contending forces would come together rather than allow the Democrats to use the Progressives in swinging the balance of power.

Efforts were made today to keep Senator Norris from launching his fight, but they were unavailing. The Nebraska Senator, backed by Senators Cummins, Borah, and Kenyon, declined to listen to the Republican leaders. Anxious to seize any advantage possible the Democrats, instead of having the resolution pigeonholed, as ordinarily would have been done, allowed it to go to the Rules Committee for consideration.

Back of the Progressive effort is a determination to fight the Lodge-Penrose-Warren control of the Senate. The Progressives insist that they will resist the program to make Senator Penrose Chairman of the Finance Committee. But the Republicans believe their plan will go through and that evetnally the Progressives will be won over.

A group of Progressive Republican Senators, led by Mr. Borah of Idaho, have determined, among themselves, to exert every influence to defeat Mr. Penrose for the Chairmanship of the Finance Committee. Within the last few days, it is understood, they have sent word to Chairman Hays of the Republican National Committee that they will resist the move to put Mr. Penrose at the head of that important committee on the ground that he is a reactionary and represents essentially the old stand-pat element in the party.

The action of the Progressive Senators was taken in confidence and there was no disposition among them tonight to discuss it. But the fact that they have decided to oppose Mr. Penrose was substantiated. Mr. Penrose, on the other hand, has the unwavering support of most Republican Senators and it is expected that, by skilful manoeuvering, he will capture the Chairmanship.

BULGARS KILLED SERBS BRUTALLY

ever except that they were patriotic Serbians and likely to keep up the national spirit among their fellow-countrymen, would arrive almost every day at Surdulitza under strong Bulgar guard. They were locked up in houses which I saw, and then at night marched down to a gully which I visited, where, tied four or five together with ropes, they were stabbed or bayoneted to death and buried where they lay by local gypsies collected for the work by the Bulgarians.

Graves of hundreds of them were shown to me yesterday. Moldy human bones were still lying about in a little stream bed where, on one Winter's night after another, the slaughter was carried out. The peasants of Surdulitza offered to dig up the graves to let me see how the heads were severed from the bodies, and I talked through an interpreter with one of the half-savage gypsies who had done the burying and who was in obvious terror that his forced share in the work might bring him punishment.

Not all the killing was carried out in this gully. On the other side of the village is a little wood. Every night the peasants of Surdulitza, who were forbidden to leave their houses after sunset, heard men's screams coming from among those trees. They knew too well what was happening, but did not dare go near, and the following morning fierce village dogs would bring into the streets human arms and even heads which they tore off the bodies of the murdered men. Twenty-five hundred is the local estimate of the number of Serbians who at Surdulitza forfeited their lives to their nationality during the first three months of 1916.

Vranja Looted Periodically.

Not more than forty persons were actually killed at Vranja itself, but once a fortnight all surviving men were ordered out of the town while the Bulgars ransacked and robbed their houses under the pretext of searching for arms, and sometimes also outraged their women.

At Ushevtse, a hamlet to the north of Vranja, 120 men, women, and children, the entire population, were killed in one day.

At Vladichi all the women were collected and some of them violated. The rest were tied up and left until two days later when the Bulgars came back and completed their work of outrage.

Last year at Yelashnitsa and Krivafaja innocent peasants were stripped naked, tied down to braziers, and roasted over slow fires to make them confess that they possessed hidden arms.

Lebane and Leskovatz were probably the worst martyred towns of all. At the former place twenty persons were beaten literally to death. The information about these last townships comes from the Serbian municipal officials and the principal inhabitants of Vranja, several of whom were there all through the Bulgar occupation. Personally I am entirely convinced of the sincerity of these men and of the truth of the terrible charges they bring. I spoke with them myself in French or German, and there was too much spontaneity in their answers and too much resemblance between the accounts which different individuals gave at different times for the idea of a faked up tale to be admissible.

What is to be done to punish this cynically planned and brutally executed policy of murder? The names of the Bulgarian officers directly responsible for these butcheries are known. The peasants of Vranja and Surdulitza utter them with the same dread as that with which men of the English West Country must have spoken of Judge Jeffreys after the bloody assize.

As the only British witness who yet has had an opportunity to investigate these crimes, I would suggest that England owes it to her Serbian allies who suffered so terribly in the common cause that England should immediately demand the appearance before an interallied court-martial of the Bulgarian officers thus accused by common report.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 18.—The newspaper recently called the "Red Flag" of Hamburg has been allowed to resume its former name, the Hamburger Echo. The Frankfurter Zeitung appears without leading articles because, it is said, it is not allowed to express its views fully. The Cologne Gazette, however, does print such comment on conditions, evidently in supporting the Socialist movement against Bolshevism.

Vorwärts tells an interesting story of the Naumberg Jaeger Battalion, which was sent to Berlin for the express purpose of suppressing the revolution. What it did was to send representatives to the Socialist Party executive and to the Vorwärts office to announce that it placed itself at the disposal of the new authorities.

There is irony, says Vorwärts, in the fact that the Jaeger battalion and the Alexander regiment, two of the first regiments to support the movement in Berlin, are now quartered in large barracks facing the royal palace there. Kaiser Wilhelm, when the barracks were completed, delivered a famous speech to the Alexander regiment, in which he said:

"Like a strong fortress, your barracks rise in the immediate neighborhood of the palace, to protect which will in the first place be your duty. You are called indeed to act as the bodyguard, day and night, of your King and his house, and, if necessary, to risk life and blood for them, and if ever again, as in 1848, the Berlin people become insolent and insubordinate, I am convinced that you will decisively put an end to their insubordination against their King."

BRITISH ON PARADE IN BELGIAN MARCH

By PHILIP GIBBS.

from the opposite direction, and halted to stare at them and wave flags at them, astounded, it seemed, by the smartness and chic of the men who, after four years of war, rode out today, spick and span from helmet to spur, on fine horses, well fed and well groomed, as a contrast to the sorry appearance of German horseflesh.

In Parade Trim for the Advance.

Above these two processions passing each other down many miles of road innumerable flags fluttered. The cavalrymen had their own pennons, and some of them rode with French and Belgian flags sticking out of their boots and fastened to their bridles. The gunners had flags on their limbers and the axles of their wagons; their steel traces were polished brightly, as though for a military tournament, and their steel helmets were shining. They have spent many hours in "spit and polish" since the day of the armistice, so that they should look well on the road to the Rhine.

They did look well. The cavalry squadrons, coming along at a hard gallop, looked as fine a body of knights as ever rode out this way when My Lord of Chandos and Sir Walter Manny went by with the Black Prince—hard and splendid men, in spite of the wear and tear of war. The gunners were "in the pink," and, looking at their batteries, all burnished and bright, one was thankful to think that they would never go into action again if nothing happened betwixt this and peace and that they would become as obsolete as "Long Bess."

The sound of all these horses' hoofs over the cobblestones through the villages of Leuze and Ath was like the rushing of water over rocky boulders, and it was a long tide of men and horses that started for the Rhine. Their breath rose before them like the smoke of fires in the frosty air. Cavalrymen slapped their hands on their thighs as they rode, and gunners sat on limbers like "Old Bill" with frozen mustaches.

It was so cold that one's fingers and feet became numb, and pity went with one along the way because of all those people who were coming home in this weather, with not much shelter at night because of the crowded estaminets and cottages, where as many as forty people sleep on bare floors, while others camp in the woods, where they burn broken telegraph poles and any litter to get a touch of warmth as the flames lick up.

Shivering Refugees Waving Flags.

They came with ox wagons piled high with mattresses, and sticks of furniture, and the baggage of many men which they dragged away with them when the Germans turned them out of their towns, and on top of the baggage were the weakest and oldest among them. They had tied mufflers around their heads and sacks over their shoulders, but for the most part they were without overcoats. Their hands and faces were blue with cold, but their hearts were warm enough as some of them trudged with heavy packs on their backs, like Christian in "The Pilgrim's Progress," and others passed with wheelbarrows and still others—the lucky ones—pedalled on bicycles bought in Brussels.

They moved under flags. They had flags in their bundles and flags in their hats. Banners streamed from their wheelbarrows and floated above their ox-wagons, and for miles down the road one saw this flutter of color—flags of all the Allies raised in triumph by these refugees, trudging with sore feet homeward.

I spoke to some of them and they told me of the state of Brussels. They confirmed what I wrote before about the degrading of German officers by their own men, the raising of the red flag, and affrays between small sections of the populace. All that has now quieted down, and Brussels is calmly awaiting the entry of Belgian troops.

The German garrison was still there yesterday, when these people left, but it is probable that most of them have now gone. Their officers are frightened men. Their degradation by their own soldiers was done mostly without violence, but they grew very pale when their men came to them and said:

"It is better to take off those things," and tore off their epaulettes.

In the outskirts of Brussels the Belgians hoisted flags several days ago, and these were allowed to remain, but in the centre of the city when they were raised German machine guns shot at them, and they were taken down again by order of the civil authorities.

Germans Point Out Hidden Mines.

A number of German officers have come over to the British lines to arrange things according to the terms of the armistice, reporting the whereabouts of road mines—there was a cage around the mines at the crossroads near Ghislenghien this morning—and to hand over guns and material. Some of them were received at headquarters at the crossroads and behaved with ceremonious politeness. They were treated with all courtesy and partook of a luncheon of bully beef sandwiches, for which they expressed deep gratitude, saying it was the best food they had had for many a long day. They hurriedly put away some of their own food which they had brought with them, such nasty-looking stuff that it made the British officers feel sick at the very sight of it.

I am unable to tell the exact whereabouts of the British troops after today's forward movement, as this must be kept as secret, I suppose, as any military movement during active operations; but I think their progress will not be rapid, and that it will be some time before they reach the Rhine. But the start has been made, and I am glad to watch the scene today, which belongs to one of the great pages of history. For the armies are going to the Rhine, and even now it seems something of a miracle, and for them it is a triumphal progress, for their guns will be silent and the roads unbarred.

METZ DISORDERS SUBSIDE.

But Citizens Dread a Recurrence of the German Riots of Last Week.

PARIS, Nov. 18.—Louis Forest, one of the editors of the Matin, succeeded in entering Metz, his native city, yesterday. He was the first Frenchman to enter since hostilities ceased. The populace gave him a lively welcome, although German soldiers and officials were still in the city.

A revolt occurred in Metz on Nov. 10 and a Soldiers' Council was formed under the leadership of two Socialist workmen and a noncommissioned officer. The membership of the council was made up of a few workmen and many soldiers.

Governor von Lequis attempted to resist and marched a squadron of cavalry with machine guns to the Place d'Armes. He ordered the cavalry to charge, but they fraternized with the mutineers. The Governor then directed all the authorities to place themselves at the service of the revolutionists.

All went well at first, but the influence of the council proved evanescent, and it lost all popularity. When it was seen that the troops would not be able to depart at once, the soldiers got out of hand and pillaged the military stores. A civic guard was formed, but on Saturday one of the last German regiments to leave broke into a champagne cellar at Moulins. There was trouble, and the civic guards had to retreat when the drunken soldiers began to use machine guns.

The situation in Metz, M. Forest reports, is difficult. The city is surrounded by armed bands, and the population is anxious for the arrival of French troops.

M. Forest found M. Houpert, managing editor of the Lorraine de Metz, who was released from the German prison on Nov. 1, getting ready to issue the first number of his newspaper on the day of the French entry into the city. There were three newspapers in Metz before the war, and M. Houpert is going to publish his first number with the three titles at the top of the first page. He explained that he was going to do this so as not to take advantage of the fact that he was the first editor to return.

MacArthur is awarded a bronze oak leaf to be worn on the Distinguished Service Cross awarded him on March 25: As brigade commander, Gen. On a field where courage was the rule, his courage was the dominant feature. Home address: Mrs. Arthur MacArthur, mother, 130 East Arralago St., Santa Barbara, Cal.

Major Lloyd D. Ross, 168th Infantry.—For the following acts of extraordinary heroism in action, Major Ross is awarded a bronze oak leaf to be worn on the Distinguished Service Cross awarded him on March 25: The courage, resolution, and resource of Major Ross as battalion commander made possible the successful capture of Hills 288, 242, and Côte de Chatillon, Oct. 14, 15, and 16, which was accomplished only after the most desperate fighting through wire and trenches against a resolute and determined defense involving frequent and bitter counterattacks. His brilliant and determined leadership was an example and inspiration to the entire command. Home address: Mrs. L. D. Ross, wife, 605 Hammond St., Red Oak, Iowa.

Lt. Col. Emory J. Pile, (deceased,) Division Machine Gun Officer, 82d Div.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Norroy on Sept. 16. Capt. Herbert N. Peters, (deceased,) 358th Infantry.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Les Huit Chemins, between Sept. 12 and 14. Warren, in command of a platoon of engineers, went over the top with the second wave of infantry. When the first wave was halted by severe machine gun and shell fire early in the action and all its officers killed or disabled, Lieut. Warren led his men up to the first wave, reorganized the remaining effectives and led them across a valley and up a hill through severe flanking fire from German machine guns. He was knocked down by the explosion of a shell, but, undaunted by murderous fire from the front and both flanks, he continued to lead his men on toward their objectives until he was shot down by a machine gun. Sergt. Martin H. Kinney, Co. L, 315th Engineers.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Pont-à-Mousson, on Sept. 26. After receiving orders to withdraw from position, he saw an officer lying wounded and helpless about fifteen yards in advance of the line. Corp. Louis H. Votaw, Co. B, 360th Infantry.—For extraordinary heroism in action in the Bois Le Pretre, on Sept. 12. Corp. Wilbur S. Light, Co. F, 358th Infantry.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Fey-en-Haye, between Sept. 12 and 14. His daring and bravery were conspicuous. Sorting Skins

FURS collected at the detached posts are brought to our larger centers where they are carefully sorted by Revillon experts. These skilled men can read in a skin many interesting facts—the locality in which it was trapped, the month it was taken and other details to which the average observer is altogether blind.

Much of the beauty and value of a fur garment depends on correct matching. Perfect assortments of skins are difficult to obtain when furs are bought in the open market, where they have been assembled from many sources and have been sorted and resorted many times. It is largely to secure perfectly matched skins collected in the same localities that Revillon Frères maintain their trading posts throughout the North.

PETAIN WILL MAKE METZ ENTRY TODAY

Castelnau and Mangin to Follow—Strassburg to Greet Foch on Sunday.

JOY IN "LOST PROVINCES"

Weeping Citizens of Mulhouse and Chateau-Salins Kiss the Tricolor Borne by Liberators.

PARIS, Nov. 18.—It is officially announced that French troops, led by General Pétain, will enter Metz tomorrow. Subsequently General Castelnau and General Mangin will follow with their armies.

The entry into Strassburg, which will be headed by Marshal Foch, will take place next Sunday and Monday.

At a Cabinet meeting today, presided over by President Poincaré, it was decided to appoint as Commissioners of the Republic at Strassburg, Metz, and Colmar, Georges Maringer, Director of the Secret Service; M. Mirman, Préfect of the Department of Meurthe et Moselle, and M. Poulet, respectively.

General de Maud'Huy, who is a native of Lorraine, has been appointed Governor of Metz, says the Temps. General Bourgeois has been named Governor of Strassburg.

MULHOUSE, Nov. 18.—No words can picture the triumphal entrance of the French troops into this city nor express the wild joy of the people who crowded the streets to applaud their liberators. Flowers, tobacco, and cockades were thrown to the soldiers as they marched along.

General Hirschauer, who is a native of Mulhouse, headed his troops. Men and women rushed forward and piously kissed the folds of the flag borne by the 344th Infantry. The cheers of the populace grew until the troops arrived at the Hôtel de Ville, where the city authorities welcomed General Hirschauer and his staff.

Loyal Welcome in Chateau-Salins.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN LORRAINE, Nov. 17, (Associated Press.) French troops made their first entry into recovered Lorraine today and were acclaimed by the population that gathered in the towns and villages to meet them.

The honor of leading the advance across the recently abolished frontier fell to the Moroccan division, including the famous Foreign Legion.

Soon after dawn the boys of Lorraine, who had unearthed bicycle tires that had remained hidden from the Germans during many long months, rode out to meet the column marching toward Chateau-Salins. The French Tricolor could be seen in the early morning light flying from the first houses of the town, though the last of the German troops had not yet left.

The streets were filled before the troops came into sight, and when the head of the column appeared, with General Dogan in the lead, it was received with shouts of joy. Old men, women, and children rushed out with improvised paper flags, laughing, shouting, and weeping in turn.

As the Zouave band marched down the main street playing "The Marseillaise," the inhabitants pressed forward, singing the national anthem. They seemed to have taken it up just where they left off forty-seven years ago.

The Foreign Legion was drawn up in the square before General Dogan, who saluted and kissed the flag held by the Colonel. He had scarcely let fall the folds of the Tricolor when the inhabitants rushed in and pressed the red, white, and blue silk to their lips, turning away with tears moistening their cheeks.

Tears Flow for British Prisoners.

The eyes of all again were wet when, just as the ceremony was drawing to a close, a half dozen British prisoners of war, turned adrift in Germany a few days before, hobbled into the town on their way toward France. They were road stained, footsore, hungry, and emaciated.

POINTS TO GERMAN CRUELTY

French Press Repelled by Defeated Nation's Recent Pleas.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 18.—It is too soon after the German cruelties which the enemy continued up to the last moment of hostilities for the French people to be enthusiastic over President Wilson's humanitarian statement concerning the treatment of the conquered country.

One discordant note in the jubilation still on in Paris is the adverse comment of the people on what seems to them to be a premature show of confidence and leniency. This feeling is voiced in the Paris press today.

"Such a sentimental attitude, immediately following so many atrocities," says Maurice Barres of the French Academy in the Echo de Paris, concerning Germany's plea for mercy, "disconcerts the French mind to the point of repulsion. We have another conception of the reserve and dignity which the guilty and defeated nation should impose on itself. The Germans are trying to awaken the pity of the universe. But what are their chief ills compared with the martyrdom of our invaded provinces, of Belgium, of Serbia, and all the other lands overrun by the German hordes?"

This attitude of the French press and people, however, contains no hint of reprisals or cruelty. Any doubt on that subject is dissipated by General Pétain's order to his troops always to remember the chivalry of the French race.

GOEBEN WAS DAMAGED BY HITTING FIVE MINES

Outer Hull Badly Punctured—Famous German Cruiser Visited in the Bosphorus.

By WARD PRICE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 14.—In a little wooded bay of the Bosphorus lies the great blue-gray warship Goeben of notorious history. The Goeben, now called the Yuus by the Turks, has a Turkish Admiral, Arir Pasha, on board, and a Turkish crew. This morning with a British naval Captain and a Major General I visited her.

What has chiefly damaged the ship is mines, of which she hit five, two in the Black Sea early in the war and three during her sortie and attack on the British monitors outside the Dardanelles last Spring. In each case the outer hull of the ship was blown in, but the inner bulkhead held, and, thanks to the excellent construction of the Goeben and the multitude of her watertight compartments, the damage was localized to gaps in the outer hull and the flooding of the compartments around them.

We went down into the stoke holds to see the bent inner bulkheads. The Germans had great confidence in the resistance of their materials. The curving plates of steel are not even supported by timber bulks against the pressure of water beyond them. The effect of these punctures of her outer hull is, however, to reduce the speed of the Goeben probably to fifteen knots, so that as a fighting unit she has lost a great deal of her quality.

When the Germans left her on Nov. 3 they took away all the plans of the ship and her engines so that the Turkish crew aboard can only find out the details of her mechanism by actual inspection. The Germans carried off, too, all fire control and other scientific instruments, so as to make the ship useless for as long as possible.

From the Turkish officers on board I heard the story of the Goeben's famous sortie from the Dardanelles when she sank the Raglan and another monitor. The Germans alone knew the aim of the raid, but the Turks think it was a sortie without objective. The Goeben hit three British mines outside, but still remained manageable.

She went ashore, they say, in the Narrows only because the German navigating officer neglected the advice of the Turkish pilot, who had steered him out of the straits. The German mistook the position of some buoys and stranded his ship. During the six days she was aground the Goeben was raided day and night by British aircraft. Two British bombs struck the ship, one at the base of the after funnel which it holed. Neither did material damage. The only bombs available at that time were too small, in fact.

When the Soeben was got off she had hundreds of tons of water inside her but she made Constantinople under her own power at 18 knots. Even since this damage was done the Goeben has been several times to Sebastapol and back.

WOMEN AT PEACE TABLE.

Send Resolutions to President Asking Full Recognition.

Representatives of women's organizations of this city met in the ballroom of the Hotel McAlpin last evening on the call of Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, President of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, to urge that women be represented in the United States delegation to the Peace Conference. Miss Mary Garrett Hay presided. A resolution offered by Mrs. Catt was adopted unanimously as follows:

> Whereas, the great war just ended has been a partnership of all the people of every belligerent country, composing two vast armies, one in the trenches and one of civilians, who have formed a second line of defense to supply the needs of the fighters, thus making it possible to fight; and
> Whereas, the war could not have been carried to a victorious conclusion without the aid of women in civilian activities, as is shown by the testimony of men of high authority in every belligerent land; and
> Whereas, all truly civilized, intelligent people now wish to make a final end of war and so to reorganize the forces of civilization as to make future war impossible; and
> Whereas, women compose a half of society, with very special and peculiar interests to be conserved and protected, all too frequently overlooked by men; therefore be it
> Resolved, That we urge the President of the United States to give women adequate representation on the United States delegation to the peace conference. We urge him to select women whose broad experience and sympathies render them competent to defend and support every point which bears upon the establishment of liberty for all the peoples of the world and especially upon the proper protection of women and of children in peace and in war. We urge him to select women who may be relied on to uphold free representative institutions, based upon the will of all the people in every land in which independence is established, in order that democratic institutions may make an end of war.

Mrs. Catt said that never had the National Suffrage Association offered any suggestion which had received such strong and immediate response as this one for having women represented at the Peace Conference.

FOR A MASS THANKSGIVING.

Flushing Pastor Proposes Peace Celebration for the Whole Town.

The Rev. James H. Ecob of 100 Sanford Avenue, pastor of the Unitarian Church of Flushing, has suggested a great community celebration of peace for Flushing on the morning of Thanksgiving Day.

Dr. Ecob has spoken to several of his brother clergymen, and they have taken kindly to his idea. The plan is to have everybody in Flushing, regardless of creed, unite in a monster service of thanksgiving, instead of splitting up into sectarian groups and holding services in their own houses of worship, as in the past.

CAPTAIN M. F. WALSH IS KILLED IN ACTION

Former Cavalry Officer Was Serving in France with the Rainbow Division.

Captain M. F. Walsh of Company E, 165th Infantry, has been killed in action, according to word received yesterday by his wife at Hempstead, L. I. Captain Walsh, who was 38 years of age, had been in the regular cavalry for twenty years, and when the Rainbow Division was organized last Summer at Camp Mills he was assigned to the then 69th New York Infantry. He was killed on Oct. 12.

Captain Julian G. Guiteras of the Engineers Corps, dead from disease, was a native of this city. He was a graduate of the Columbia School of Applied Science and was 28 years of age. He has two brothers in the service.

Captain John F. Callahan of the 106th Infantry, New York Division, is reported killed in action. Prior to going South with the 12th Infantry he was a lawyer, and was serving with the Public Service Commission. He was a graduate of Cornell and Fordham.

Lieutenant Theodore de Kruijff of the Aviation Corps is reported dead from pneumonia on Nov. 8. His home was in Freeport, L. I. He was a member of the Lafayette Escadrille when that unit was absorbed by the American forces.

Lieutenant Henry R. Blackham, Company A, 116th Infantry, killed in action on Oct. 11, was a son of Mrs. Clara Blackham of 393 Fairmount Avenue, Jersey City. He was a graduate of the New York Law School, and was a member of the New Jersey bar. He was a Battalion Sergeant Major with the 4th New Jersey Infantry on the border.

He is 35 years of age, was a graduate of the Medical College of the College of the City of New York. For a time he was an interne at Flower Hospital. His home is at 81 Ascension Street, Passaic, and he was the first Passaic physician to enter the service.

Sergeant Arthur Lawson of Co. C, 107th Infantry, was killed on Sept. 29. He was a Glen Cove, L. I., boy and it was he who, when the 107th was chafing over the long delay in Camp Wadsworth, hung out a service flag on his tent when one of his platoon was assigned to overseas duty. Lawson was up before the Captain of Company C to explain his action and when he said he displayed the service star because his "mate" had "actually gone into the service," he gave the 27th Division the greatest laugh it had during its nine months' period of waiting.

Sergeant George D. Baker, killed on Oct. 12, was a member of the 114th Infantry. His home was at 331 Pennington Avenue, Passaic, N. J.

U. S. SUPREME COURT REJECTS MOONEY PLEA

Declines to Review Conviction of Labor Leader for Parade Bomb Murder.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The United States Supreme Court refused today to review the case of Thomas J. Mooney, labor leader, under sentence to die Dec. 13, for murder in connection with a Preparedness Day bomb explosion in San Francisco on July 22, 1916, in which ten persons were killed and forty injured.

Mooney's counsel appealed to the Supreme Court after a long fight in California to upset decisions of the State courts. In asking the Supreme Court to review his case, Mooney charged that his conviction had been obtained through fraud on the part of the District Attorney, who had made use of perjured testimony. This fraud was not discovered, he claimed, until after his conviction, but efforts to obtain a new trial failed.

Director Gifford Resigns.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Walter S. Gifford, Director of the Council of National Defense, has resigned to return to the American Telephone and Telegraph Company as Controller. His services were loaned to the Government by that company for the war emergency. Grosvenor B. Clarkson, Secretary of the Council, has been named Acting Director.

Soldiers Use
ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE

A prominent British Government officer while talking about the war to a large body of business men in N.Y. City recently said, "After the tired soldier has returned from a 12 mile tramp, with swollen and aching feet, is there a mother, who, if she knew, would not go out and get some Foot-Ease to send to her boy?"

People everywhere should realize the comfort derived from Allen's Foot-Ease, the antiseptic, healing powder to be shaken into the shoes. It takes the friction from the shoe and gives instant relief to tired, aching, swollen, tender feet, corns, bunions, blisters and callouses.

The Plattsburg Camp Manual advises all men in training to shake Foot-Ease in their Shoes each morning. No soldier or sailor should be without it. Try it yourself and if you have a son, brother or friend in the army or navy, why not mail him a package now. Sold by drug and dep't stores everywhere.

WAR'S DIRECT COST NEAR 200 BILLIONS

NATIONS HAVE HUGE DEBTS

Annual Burden to Pay Interest and Sinking Fund Will Be at Least $10,000,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The direct cost of the war for all belligerent nations to last May 1 was reported at about $175,000,000,000 by the Federal Reserve Board bulletin issued today, and it is estimated that the cost will amount to nearly $200,000,000,000 before the end of this year. These calculations were compiled by the board from various sources, and, while their accuracy is not vouched for, the board believes the figures are substantially correct.

How the cost mounted as the war grew in proportion from year to year is illustrated by tabulations showing that the mobilization and the first five months of the war in 1914 cost all belligerents about $10,000,000,000. In 1915 the expenses jumped to $26,000,000,000. In 1916 they increased to $38,000,000,000, and in 1917 they were estimated at $60,000,000,000. This year expenses have run only a little above the rate last year.

About $150,000,000,000 of the total war cost has been raised by war loans of various nations and comparatively little by taxation. The public debt of the principal Entente Allies is calculated at approximately $105,000,000,000, or more than twice as much as the aggregate debt of the Central Powers, set at $45,000,000,000. This does not take into consideration debt incurred since last May.

The enormous size of the war costs and debt is illustrated by comparison with the ante-war debt of the seven principal belligerents, which did not exceed $25,000,000,000. The cost of supporting this debt was only about $1,000,000,000 a year. Hereafter the annual burden to pay interest and sinking fund allowances will be not less than $10,000,000,000 and probably much more.

Study of Germany's financial situation has been undertaken by Government agencies here with a view to throwing light on the ability of the German nation to pay big sums as reparation for devastation of invaded countries. Unofficial reports indicate that Germany's national debt, represented mainly by war bonds held within the empire, is now nearly $35,000,000,000, or more than two-fifths of the estimated national wealth of $80,000,000,000.

Whatever may be the weight of the final burden of reparation and restitution to be placed on Germany, the enormity of the task ahead of her may be illustrated by comparison of her national debt with that of the United States. Germany has 66,000,000 population and $80,000,000,000 of estimated wealth, to pay $35,000,000,000 of war debt already created. The United States has 110,000,000 population and an estimated national wealth of $250,000,000,000 to pay nearly $18,000,000,000 war debt already created, or approximately $3,000,000,000 within another six months. This means that the per capita burden will be at least three times greater in Germany than in the United States.

SEEKS WORLD COMPACT ON SEAMEN'S WAGES

Chairman Hurley Hopes to Induce Maritime Nations to Adopt Our Standards.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Chairman Hurley of the Shipping Board, who sailed for Europe last Saturday to prepare for the return of American troops to this country and for moving needed food supplies to the war-famished nations overseas, also plans to seek an international agreement between the Governments, shipping interests, and labor organizations of the principal maritime powers for standardization of seamen's wages and working conditions.

It was said today that Mr. Hurley expected to propose that the American laws and agreements between the Government and Seamen's Unions on these subjects be accepted as the standards, and it is understood that the American Federation of Labor and the British Seamen's Union are prepared to support the proposal.

It was learned today that the Shipping Board, as far as consistent with the necessities of the Government, was diverting ships to normal trade routes, and that it hoped within a few months to have American ships carrying needed commodities of peace to South and Central America, Asia, and Africa, as well as to Europe.

Some ships requisitioned by the Shipping Board for the war are being turned back to private owners, and the board plans to return such vessels as rapidly as possible.

Democratic Campaign Expenditures

ALBANY, Nov. 18.—Harry C. Walker, the Lieutenant Governor-elect, spent $1,154 in his campaign for election, according to his statement of expenses filed with the Secretary of State today. A partial report of the Democratic State Committee shows that $21,530 had been expended, although the receipts up to Oct. 1 were only $4,300, of which $3,000 was contributed by the Democratic National Committee.

AMERICAN INVENTOR PERFECTS WIRELESS

signed naval experts to co-operate with the inventor in installing experimental stations in various parts of the country. These stations are now receiving messages from all the high power wireless stations of the world.

Allies Study System.

With the consent of the Marconi Company, the United States Navy Department disclosed the Weagant invention to our allies, and special representatives of the French and British Governments were sent here to study the system. Among the revolutionary changes that the new system effects in wireless installations will be the immediate disappearance of the huge steel towers heretofore built at great height to catch the incoming wireless waves. Equipped with the Weagant invention, the wireless receiving antennae are stretched merely a few feet above the ground.

Heretofore, also, the increasing number of high power stations that were being erected in every part of the world raised the difficult question of "interference." Crossing wireless messages that shot through the ether sometimes made the wireless signals so indistinct that they could not be understood, or drowned the weaker transmission entirely. The Weagant system, based on a unique selective principle, eliminates "interference" and permits absolutely clear communication, regardless of the operation of other stations even in the immediate vicinity.

The notable contribution to wireless telegraphy opened by Mr. Weagant's discovery makes continuous wireless communication over the oceans and between continents an assured fact for twenty-four hours of the day and at every season of the year, regardless of atmospheric conditions. All the Marconi high power stations are being equipped with the Weagant system, and the stations of the Pan-American Wireless Telegraph and Telephone Company, which are to link North and South America in a closer bond of brotherhood, will likewise be equipped. In all probability the United States, as well as the allied Governments, will adopt this system. Mr. Weagant, who has been a distinguished radio engineer for fifteen years, is only 37 years old.

Patents Are Held Up.

At this time, Mr. Nally said, it was impossible to give any detailed description of Mr. Weagant's invention, because, while the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company of America had received letters patent from the United States Government covering every feature of the invention, patents in European and other countries could not be granted until the treaty of peace. Both the British and French Governments do not wish that any Governments, other than those of the Entente and the United States, shall know anything about the details of the invention until a peace treaty has been signed, sealed, and delivered. David Sarnoff, commercial manager for the American Marconi, said:

"Mr. Weagant had a problem to solve. It was the same problem, baffling and illusive, on which wireless engineers had been working for years. Mr. Weagant and all the others engaged on the problem knew that its solution meant the perfection of wireless telegraphy. And so he set to work on the problem, not primarily to make a new invention. He began his work shortly after the outbreak of the war in 1914. His goal was to make possible the transmission of clear and distinct wireless messages, as Pupin's was to make possible the transmission of clear and distinct messages over the long-distance telephone. Pupin solved his problem with the invention of his loading coil. Mr. Weagant solved his by making use of a number of circuits."

"Yes," interjected Mr. Nally, "he did that, and in doing it, he really discovered a new law of nature. When Mr. Marconi was over here a year ago, he examined Mr. Weagant's work very carefully and became enthusiastic over it. He said that Weagant showed the most remarkable intuition of any man he had ever known."

"And now," continued Mr. Sarnoff, "because of Mr. Weagant's invention, it is possible to send wireless messages, every word of which goes clearly and distinctly into the receiver, without any interference, at the marvelous rate of 200 words a minute by the duplex system; that is, on what might be called the same circuit, messages at that rate may be sent and received."

They're Coming Back

VICTORY has been achieved and we have celebrated the ending of war's horrors with an outpouring of joy and thanksgiving such as the world has never before seen. Soon the big boats will begin to bring our boys back to us. A constantly swelling tide of khaki clad heroes will return to America—to their homes. And it is in these homes that the next celebration will be held—a welcoming back, with tears and laughter, to the happy hearts of wives and mothers.

They return from a stern and bitter task which they have finished in a manner that commands our respect and homage. From months of action in muddy trenches, swept by high explosives, rending shrapnel and the hail of machine gun fire, they return tired, happy and victorious.

At the front, music played a big part. In the "Y" huts, back of the front lines, wherever there was a piano, you could always find a throng of the boys, forgetting their tired, muddy bodies and the strain of battle in the pleasures of music. The boys coming back will need relaxation, they will crave the finer things of art to readjust and rejuvenate their minds and bodies to a life of renewed peace and happiness.

In your own home you will need the pleasures of music to welcome your homecoming boy, as well as for your own enjoyment. Music of a new and finer character than you ever dreamed possible to attain in your home is offered you in the Ampico Reproducing Piano. An instrument that re-creates the playing of great artists, from records that they have made in our studios, exactly as they play on the Concert Stage. You need no knowledge of music to achieve this pleasure, the Ampico, of itself, reproduces the exquisite art of the world's master musicians. Mothers and Fathers of America Give to Your Own Sons

IT WAS AT A LITTLE HOSPITAL IN FRANCE. One of the workers—Young Men's Christian Association, Jewish Welfare Board, Knights of Columbus—what does it matter, they are all the same—was one day passing by and suddenly thought of a Scotch boy with whom he had been talking before that same afternoon. He entered the tent expecting to find the boy marked that night for transfer home. But when he approached he saw that something had happened, something had intervened between all hopes and plans. The wounded lad's eyes were bright with fever and he beckoned to the man of mercy. "Come here, mummy," he said; "put your arm under my head and I think I will sleep to-night."

"And then," says the worker, "I saw that he had become a child again. 'Hear me say my prayers now, mummy,' he said, and beginning 'Our Father which art in Heaven,' he felt his way through it like a blind man in a narrow alley, till he got tangled in forgetfulness and stumbled for a moment into silence. Then, looking up at me, he said, 'Kiss me, mummy,' and I kissed him and tucked him in as his mother used to do when he was a boy at home, and by way of sleep that night he found a dawn beyond our daybreak."

Your son, perhaps, is there—that boy you love so well. He may be wounded. God forbid! But if he is, an arm will pillow his head to-night and fatherly hands will be on his and kindly lips will speak those words that you would speak if you were by his side. It will be the hands and lips of one of that band of consecrated men, one of those big-hearted brothers, who welcomed your boy that home-sick day he came to camp, who sailed with him on the transport, who went, perhaps, through the hell-fire of shot and bursting shell to save him when he was wounded, who brought food and comfort and friendliness and home to him on the very fire-step of the front-line trench.

These big brothers are calling to you from France for help. Nay, they are calling to you from every cantonment, from every camp, here and abroad, where our soldier lads are gathered together. "Fathers and Mothers of America!" they say, "your victorious boys are in our hands. We want to send them back to you clean, strong, brave. God willing, these shall not have been wasted months or years. We have been working and praying, so that, even while he fought, your son would grow in stature—body, mind, and soul. Money is needed—a veritable tide of gold—to carry on this work. Fathers and Mothers of America, make this last great gift to your sons!"

Shall we add our poor word to the passionate appeal for $170,500,000 that is being made by these seven societies, these great brotherhoods that stand behind our armies—the Young Men's Christian Association, the Young Women's Christian Association, the National Catholic War Council, the Jewish Welfare Board, the Salvation Army, the American Library Association, the War Camp Community Service? No, there is no need for us to tell you why you should give. Your own heart is crying out to you now to give. Give money? Why, you would give your right hand, you would give your beating heart itself, if it would bring your boy comfort and happiness, health and protection.

Little enough do we know what these lads of ours have endured without complaint; little enough do we know how they have died without bitterness, thinking never of self, but of suffering chums and loved ones at home, humble in their self-sacrifice. Little can we hope to imagine what "Y" or "K. of C." men and huts have meant and still mean to them, we who are safe and warm and with friends.

"Sometimes," says a "Y" worker, "I sit all day beside a man, feeling my heart just break listening to him as he speaks words of love and messages of deepest tenderness in his dying fever to those far off across the seas whom he thinks to be right up near his stretcher-bed. And then a man who has been blinded wants me to hold one of his hands; another poor lad sobs out his life, his head in my arms, crying for his mother as you and I cried for ours when we were lonely; and I guide the hands of another—a big boy, torn and shattered by a shell, as he writes good-bye to his sweetheart and tells her God will bring them together again."

What have we known of such things as these—we in America? What have we known of the horror of the rain-soaked trench at night, with the shells flying overhead like bats out of hell? What have we known of the gnawing cramp of hunger or the hideous wrench of agonizing wounds? Our eyes have not seen the human wreckage of the battle-field, our ears have not heard its awful cries. Our lips have not touched the cup. Our meatless days, our wheatless meals, our good ladies knitting — would we dare look on one poor wooden cross in Flanders field and call these things "giving"? Not if we are men. If our fields had been plowed by murderous guns, if our cities had been looted, razed, and ruined, if our men had been crucified and shot, then would we be able to speak a language of sacrifice we do not know or even dimly understand. Then would we have learned something of the courage of Christ when he refused the stupefying drink upon the cross, and faced suffering—yes, welcomed and greeted it, as a very end and aim of life.

It is a splendid thing to have given billions to war that war may cease. It is thrice blessed to give now to these magnificent and merciful organizations that have been formed not to take life, but to save it, not to give wounds, but to bind them up, not to spread disaster and blasting death, but to dispense good cheer and kindliness and knowledge and comfort and brotherly love among our own boys.

It is a wonderful privilege to give to this great cause when for the first time in history Jew, Protestant, and Catholic are sinking the bitter differences of centuries, when prejudices are sweeping out like ash in furnace-winds, and creeds are commingling in the final gold of truth. This cause is, indeed, His cause, and each dollar we give is given into the very treasury of Heaven.

If for a moment we are tempted to shrink from new sacrifices and are grown weary of giving, we have but to look around about us to remember our duty, for already in our streets the crutch tells its simple story and carries its mute appeal to the heart; already our consciences are challenged by the eloquence of the empty sleeve; already we are faced by the outward evidences of these our boys who have laid not merely money, but life and body themselves, upon the altar.

Fathers and Mothers of America! Your sons need warm hearts to father them and ministering hands to sustain them; they need every comfort, every care, every protection that money can buy and love provide. Now that peace has been declared they need these things even more, if possible, during the trying months when they are waiting to return to you. It is your own flesh and blood that is calling you. As you cherish American manhood, and in the name of God who gives victory to the right, answer the call.

DOWN THE RED FLAG, HYLAN TELLS POLICE

Mayor Also Orders That All Unauthorized Assemblages Shall Be Dispersed.

MUST RESPECT AUTHORITY

Points to Channels of Law, and Order Through Which New Ideas Should Make Their Way.

Mayor Hylan sent a letter to Police Commissioner Enright yesterday directing him not to allow the public display of the red flag in the city and to have the police disperse all unauthorized assemblages. The letter read:

"We are passing through the most important and critical period of our history. Reports from abroad picture the horrors and outrages of unrestrained mobs and even the great neutral nations in Europe are facing the dangers of social upheavel.

"In this critical time every loyal American citizen must exercise forebearance and patience and aid the authorities to deal justly and fairly with every problem of Government. Government and authority must be respected.

"Whenever new ideas are suggested they must be considered calmly and if adopted should be put into effect through the established methods of law and order. It is the duty of every public official to keep in mind that he is the servant of the people and that he should give the best that is in him by serving them faithfully and well.

"The display of the red flag in our thoroughfares seems to be emblematic of unbridled license and an insignia for law hating and anarchy, like the black flag represents every thing that is repulsive to ideals of civilization and the principles upon which our Government is founded. For the preservation of public order, peace, and welfare of the community only the American flag or the insignia of some foreign Government recognized by the Government of the United States should be displayed. Never in our national history has the Stars and Stripes meant so much in the way of freedom and liberty as the flag means to our own people and the struggling and downtrodden of all the world.

"No matter wha may have been the practice in ordinary times, no unauthorized gatherings or meetings should be allowed in the public streets and thoroughfares of our city.

"I therefore direct that the police disperse all unauthorized assemblages and prevent the public display of the red flag in this city."

WARMEST NOV. 18 HERE.

High Humidity and High Tides Mark Indian Summer Day.

November weather, that started in the very first of the month with an unseasonable average, is keeping up its reputation, and yesterday the mercury went up to 65 degrees, thereby establishing a record for the warmest Nov. 18 in the history of the Weather Bureau. This was the second record day of the month, the other being Nov. 10, when the temperature got to 60 degrees.

The next highest temperature record for Nov. 18 was 64 degrees, in 1886. The highest November temperature ever recorded in the city was 74 degrees, on Nov. 1, 1882. A seasonable average for the month would be about 44 degrees, the Weather Forecaster said.

The south wind yesterday caused an unusually high tide. Many of the ferry bridges were lifted until vehicles had to go up a sharp incline to make the boats, and in some cases the water flooded the ferry houses.

What made the day uncomfortable, the Forecaster added, was the humidity, which was never below 80 during the day and at 4 o'clock in the afternoon was 94. Last year the first snowstorm came about this time.

ASKS FOCH TO VISIT CITY.

Mayor Hylan Also Offers Him the Freedom of New York.

Mayor Hylan wants Marshal Foch, Commander in Chief of the allied armies, to visit New York. A cablegram sent by the Mayor yesterday reads:

"May the people of the City of New York have the privilege and pleasure of expressing to you in person how highly they esteem you, and will you not accept an invitation to be their guest so that they may pay you tribute for the marvelous results attained by you as Commander in Chief of the allied forces?

"We owe you a debt for your part in the triumph of democracy over autocracy. On behalf of the municipality I offer you the freedom of the city, which is but a feeble manifestation of our deep regard and admiration."

Walk-Over SHOES

These Are Days of So Many More Steps

Here is a shoe to help women. It has been called "The Army Shoe for American Women." But army shoes can't have the graceful lines of shoes designed for the smaller feet of women. We prefer to call it an occupation-shoe—a get-things-done shoe, aidful to our volunteer women-workers in the numerous ways they keep busy for their country.

It has a restful street-arch, an attractive toe, and a military heel. A serviceable heel makes every step less tiring in these days of so many more steps. Let us show you how well it looks on your foot.

THE WOMAN MAKES THE HOME

ANDREA

The Girl Who Flew Away

SHE was the daughter of an English baron, land-poor, blood-proud. She had been brought up to marry well, and was engaged to a South African millionaire, more than twice her age—a cold-blooded, mercenary contract.

The war had called her fiancé to South Africa, so it was arranged that Andrea should go out to him,—oh, but carefully chaperoned, by Aunt Gwen!

And so the story opens.

THOUGH she has given her promise when she gets half way on her journey she turns heartsick at the dreary prospect.

She slips away from her hotel, and goes out into the desert, where she sees an aëroplane with two men working about it. One is white and one is black.

On a sudden mad impulse she says to the White Man, "Please, Mr. Man, take me with you."

The engine roared, and they rose into the air, straight into the eye of the rising sun.

That is how Andrea Pellor flew away from her empty life, into the heart of Africa with a man she did not know.

This is the beginning of the novel of romantic adventure, "White Man" by George Agnew Chamberlain which begins in the December Companion and will be published complete in Two Big Parts.

Did you notice those last words—Two Big Parts?

Do you realize that this is a regular feature of the Companion's fiction program? No tiresome waiting, month after month, until memory fails and patience faints trying to remember what happened last in a long-drawn-out serial.

Here are the names of a few of those who are making the Companion's fiction famous:

Margaret Deland, Juliet Wilbor Tompkins, Maude Radford Warren, Eleanor Hallowell Abbott, Peter Clarke MacFarlane, Elizabeth Jordan, Fannie Heaslip Lea, Eliza Calvert Hall, Katharine Holland Brown, Harrison Rhodes, Sophie Kerr, Grace Sartwell Mason, and many others, known to women everywhere.

There are just Two Big Parts for every novel the Companion publishes — ONE FULL SIZE NOVEL COMPLETE EVERY TWO MONTHS, as well as the usual amount of short fiction stories. And ALL the stories, both long and short, by your favorite writers.

DALLAS IS CHOSEN AS A.A.U. PRESIDENT

Philadelphia Man Elected to Handle Athletic Affairs for Coming Year.

BIG MEETS NOT AWARDED

Outdoor Championship Contests Fail to Attract Applicants—Rubien Retains Office.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18.—Samuel J. Dallas of the Meadow Brook Club, Philadelphia, was today unanimously elected President of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States. Frederick W. Rubien, New York, was re-elected Secretary-Treasurer, and the following were named Vice Presidents: J. F. Conway, Boston; J. T. Taylor, Pittsburgh; Robert Weaver, Los Angeles; Latrobe Cogswell, Baltimore. The next annual meeting will be held in Boston.

The junior, senior, and all-around championship meet was not awarded, the committee having jurisdiction holding up for further consideration the one application received. It was from the Hog Island Shipyard Athletic Association.

Other national championships awarded are as follows: Ten-mile run and seven-mile walk, Brooklyn A. C.; swimming, outdoor, 100 yards, straightaway and 440 yards, Lincoln Park B. C., Chicago; 880 yards, United Labor League, Pittsburgh; one mile, Multonomah A. C., Portland, Ore.; ten miles, Riverton, (N. J.) Yacht Club; high diving, Buckeye A. C., Columbus, Ohio.

Basket ball, Los Angeles A. C.

Boxing, Boston A. C.

Gymnastic, Los Angeles A. C.

Wrestling, Birmingham, Ala.

Hand ball, Los Angeles A. C.

The A. A. U. rejected one record, that of Duke P. Kahanamoku, Honolulu, who claimed a record of 1:00 4-5 in the 110-yard open title salt water straightaway event. It was said the start in which the Hawaiian made the time was irregular.

The constitution of the union was amended so that an amateur athlete who became a paid instructor in army camps shall not lose his amateur standing.

The delegates rejected an amendment proposed by the Pacific Association, that foreign athletes shall not be eligible to compete in championships.

Two thousand dollars will be given for athletic equipment in army camps in Porto Rico and $3,000 will be distributed for camp athletic equipment in this country during the demobilization period.

Joie W. Ray, the sturdy little Illinois A. C. runner, made one American running record and equalled another during the athletic year just closed, according to statistics approved by the Record Committee today. Ray eclipsed the five-year-old mark of J. P. Driscoll for the 1,320-yard run, when he covered the distance in 3:05 at the games of the John Wanamaker Commercial Institute held in Madison Square Garden March 20. Driscoll's mark was 3:07, and he made it in 1913.

The record which Ray equalled is for 1,000 yards indoors. This mark, 2:14, was established by the late Johnny Overton of Yale, in the national indoor championship meet of 1917.

Charlie Pores, Pelham Bay Naval Training Station, will get a new American record for his time in winning the five-mile championship at the recent national title meet. Pores's time was 24:36 4-5, displacing the mark of 25:08 made by Hannes Kolehmainen in 1913.

In swimming, Norman Ross of the Olympic Club, San Francisco, was the most successful performer. Ross established five new American records. He swam 200 yards in a nine-turn bath in 2:06 4-5, 220 yards in a ten-turn bath in 2:20 1-5, 300 yards in a fourteen-turn bath in 3:16 3-5, 440 yards in a twenty-one-turn bath in 5:08 4-5, and 500 yards in a twenty-four-turn bath in 5:53 2-5.

Harold Kruger and Duke Kahanamoku, the Hawaiian swimmers, each had two record performances to their credit. Kruger swam the 100-yard backstroke straightaway in open still water in 1:10 2-5; 150 yards in open tidal water, two turns, in 1:54 4-5, and the 100-meter backstroke in open still water straightaway in 1:17 1-5. Kahanamoku's marks were for 100-meter open still salt water, one turn, 1:01 2-5; 120 yards open still salt water, one turn, 1:07 2-5, and the 200-yards in open tidal water in 2:11 2-5. Perry McGillivray, Great Lake Naval Training Station, had two marks, viz.: The 220-yard open still water, straightaway, 2:21 1-5, and 150-yard backstroke in a five-turn bath, 1:48 1-5. W. L. Wallen, also of the Great Lakes Station, made a record at the 440-yard open still water straightaway swim of 5:25.

Miss Claire Galligan of the New York Women's Swimming Association, showed the way to women natators in making records. She had four of them, as follows: The 880-yard, over 220 yards straightaway, open tidal water, 13:31 4-5; 1,000 yards, over a 100-yard straightaway, 16:50 2-5; one mile, over a 100-yard straightaway, 29:33 2-5, and 220-yard straightaway, open water, slightly against tide, 3:02 3-5. Miss Olga Dorfner, Philadelphia Gymnasium Society, had two marks to her credit. She swam the 100-yard straightaway, open still water, in 1:06 2-5, and the 220-yard open still water, two turns, in 2:56 2-5. For the 880-yard open still water, eight-turn swim, Miss Frances Cowells set a mark of 13:46 2-5, and for the 100-yard backstroke in a four-turn bath, Miss Ruth Smith, Columbus A. C., Pittsburgh, set a mark of 1:37 1-5. The Philadelphia Turngemeinde women's relay team set a mark of 5:06 for the 400-yard relay swim in a bath.

FORDHAM AT WORK AGAIN.

Team Gets No Respite After Victory Over Boston.

Although somewhat battered from its game with Boston College on Saturday, the Fordham squad was sent through a light workout yesterday. Several of the regulars were missing. Harden, Mahony, Farrington, and Rose were pretty well used up, especially Mahony and Harden, who were injured in the early part of the game.

Besides the brilliant work of Captain Frisch, who was instrumental in both of the Fordham scores, the strong defensive stand in the last quarter, when the Boston team had the ball on the one-yard line, and after four successive drives into the Maroon line was unable to score, was the outstanding feature.

Yesterday's practice consisted entirely in going over some of the mistakes of Saturday and developing new plays for the game with Camp Merritt on next Saturday afternoon.

Joseph Concannon took the lead in the first day's play of a week's pocket billiards match with John Layton for 1,200 points at Daly's yesterday. Concannon won the evening game by 104 to 86, making a high run of 34, against one of 27 for Layton. The latter took the afternoon contest by 100 to 94. Layton had a high run of 32, while Concannon's best cluster was 26.

Coleman Victor at Balk Line.

Hal B. Coleman defeated Mark Muldaur in an exhibition of 18.2 balk line billiards last night at Doyle's, by 250 to 223, in thirty innings. Coleman made high runs of 50, 40, and 30, with an average of 8 10-30.

KASHMIR FINDS SOFT SPOT.

Lightly Weighted Colt Takes Domino Purse at Bowie.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 18.—The Meadow Brook Stock Farm's Kashmir, which has been running for a long time in good company without being able to finish in front, was dropped into a soft spot this afternoon in the Domino Purse at a mile. The rain, which fell heavily, also improved Kashmir's chances, as the heavy going was to his liking. He had only 99 pounds to carry, and, with little McCrann in the saddle, had no trouble in going to the front when Koh-I-Noor got tired of making the pace. Koh-I-Noor held the place safely from Matinée Idol.

Despite the changed track conditions, the horses ran close to form, the greatest upset being when H. Meyers guided Firing Line home in the third race, the Star Shoot gelding paying $45.60 for $2. The summaries:

PILKINGTON IN HARD BOUT.

Amateur Boxing Champion Forced to Limit in Contest.

Charles Pilkington, 125-pound New York amateur champion, won one of the hardest bouts of his career last night in the concert hall of Madison Square Garden, where amateur boxing and wrestling contests were held for the United War Work Campaign. Pilkington met Abe Stollack at 130 pounds. The title-holder got the judges' award in three rounds, but he was forced to his limit to stave off defeat.

In another bout E. Kreger, Pastime A. C., defeated Raymond Hill in two rounds; at 110 pounds, James Romano, Glencoe A. C., defeated R. Lackoff, three rounds, judges' decision, and at 115 pounds, M. Maresco, Glencoe A. C., defeated J. Wazl, three rounds, and I. Applebaum defeated C. De Gracona in two rounds.

The wrestling bouts at 158 pounds resulted as follows: J. E. Ristmaker, Finnish-American A. C., threw A. Kaszlek, Hungarian-American A. HORSEMEN PREPARE FOR SPORT REVIVAL

Opening of Old Glory Sale Finds Enthusiasts Ready for Big Times Again.

There was a large gathering of followers of the trotting circuit in Madison Square Garden yesterday for the opening of the Old Glory auction, at which choice racing prospects are distributed each year to the highest bidders. As usual, the day was largely devoted to looking over the richly bred yearlings which will be offered later in the week, and to talking over the outlook for harness racing next year. The general idea is that there will be a big boost in the sport, owing to the war having ended, and it is also believed that the market will be stimulated by foreigners, who have ceased buying American stock since hostilities commenced.

One sure thing was established—that New Yorkers are coming back in the sport, for the highest price of the day was paid by an old Speedway driver, Charles Weiland, who obtained a brown mare, Queen Abbess, for $2,000. The mare is eight years old, with a record of 2:03¾, and will make a formidable candidate in Speedway brushes.

Owing to the lukewarm bidding, there were many opportunities to pick up bargains. One of these was apparent when Petrecara, a seven-year-old mare by Peter the Great, was knocked down to T. Dougherty of Goshen for $325. A year ago at the Old Glory sale this mare brought $2,550.

There is expected to be brisk bidding today for the yearlings of the Walnut Hall Farm, by such noted sires as Walnut Hall, Moke, and San Francisco. The youngsters of Peter the Great from Laurel Hall also will be disposed of today.

TAYLOR SKATES IN FIRST.

Wins Mile Handicap Race at 181st Street Rink.

William Taylor of the New York A. C. won a one-mile handicap ice skating race last night at the 181st Street Ice Skating Palace from a field of nineteen rivals. The race was the principal event of a carnival arranged for the United War Work Campaign. A crowd which taxed the capacity of the rink witnessed the exhibitions.

The large field necessitated running the event in heats. In the final heat seven skaters opposed Taylor, who was on scratch. The New York A. C. star took the lead about two laps from the finish and won by about five yards from G. H. Lahrman, United States Navy, who had a start of eighty yards. Mike McLaughlin, Tremont Skating Association, with a thirty-yard allowance, was third. Taylor's time was 3:11 1-5. Joe Moore also started from scratch but fell on the fourth lap of the final heat.

A number of professionals gave exhibitions of fancy, figure, and speed skating. These included Bobby McLean, professional champion; George Kerner and May Judell, Healy's Sextet, John Daly, Paul Wilson and Miss Uksila, and Elsie Muller, who covered a quarter mile in a speed test in 0:52 2-5.

Novice Title to Blaisdell.

J. F. Blaisdell last night won the novice straight-rail billiard championship of the N. A. A. B. P., when he defeated J. M. Shea in the final game for the title at Lawler Brothers' Academy in Brooklyn, by a score of 100 to 86, in thirty-three innings. Blaisdell had high runs of 29 and 15, and averaged 3 1-33.

Which foot is perfect?

Is it the foot on the left with the flaring arch that curves up away from the floor? The foot that gives spring to your step, swing to your gait and vigor to your whole manner?

Or is it the foot on the right with the arch down on the floor? The foot that causes a plodding, heavy gait, that wastes energy, that leaves you spiritless at night?

Paved sidewalks and hard floors have imposed a burden on the feet which was formerly unknown. Hard leather heels have increased the strain to which the foot is subjected.

Most of us know from experience how lifeless we feel all over when we are foot-sore.

Relieve the strain

O'Sullivan's Heels act as natural cushions between your feet and hard pavements and floors.

They help to keep the normal arch in shape. They ease the strain on arches which have broken down from the continual pounding on pavements.

Because of our special process O'Sullivan's Heels combine the greatest durability with the greatest resiliency. They are made of the perfect heel material.

Buy your new shoes with O'Sullivan's Heels already attached. Good dealers sell the latest style shoes with these heels already attached. Have O'Sullivan's put on all your shoes at once. Give your feet a chance.

"The Blue Bird" was a fairy tale of the most exquisite originality and humor, lit up at times by strange and evanescent gleams of philosophy. In its sequel, "The Betrothal," to which Winthrop Ames has given a superlatively beautiful production, all the elements of the former play are present, but in an inverse proportion. The dominant note is philosophic. We are face to face with a theory of life and of love which is at once profoundly beautiful and not a little startling in its modernity. There is humor, too, and the lure of the land of faery; but they are intermittent and evanescent, as was the philosophic element in "The Blue Bird."

The change is quite natural, in view of the fact that Tyltyl is no longer a child, but has reached the age of 17. His morning dreams are haunted by the figures of the maidens he has seen, and exchanged glances with, in the neighboring countryside—the daughters of Miller, Beggar, Butcher, Mayor, and the rest. At the bidding of the Fairy Berylune, they come to the Woodcutter's Cottage and make love to Tyltyl, one and all, with the frankness of dream maidens. Their conduct is also accounted for by the fact that the jewel in Tyltyl's magic cap divests all creatures of such trivial, surface traits as sex modesty and jealousy. But Tyltyl is not able to choose from among them his future wife. This is not because they are all so charming and so willing—nothing as trivial as that, or as deservedly complimentary to these maidens—but because there is one test in the choosing of a mate which they somehow fail to meet.

To solve the difficulty, the Fairy Berylune takes Tyltyl and the bevy of his First Loves upon a journey. They go to the Miser's house and Tyltyl, by turning the sapphire in his cap, softens the old man's heart and opens his purse. The character of the Miser is very brilliantly portrayed by Cecil Yapp and the scene is most effective; but its inner meaning is certainly not self-evident.

Much the same is true of the next scene, in which, owing to the fact that Tyltyl has mislaid his cap, the bevy of maidens are seen in their workaday guise as cats and hoydens. But the philosophy of the fairy story becomes more palpable in the latter part of the play, in which Tyltyl and his train reach the abode of all his ancestors, and then the abode of his children and children's children.

The chief tenet in Maeterlinck's philosophy of love is that mating is no mere personal affair, but a sacrament, so to speak, of the family—in fact of the race. He has said in one of his essays that the first kiss of true lovers is decreed and partaken of by all the multitudes of children that are to come.

It now appears that ancestors take an equally intrusive part in this supposedly private transaction. Modern biology is discovering much the same truth, though in different terms; and the eugenists are fumbling on the verge of it. But if there is science in this philosophy there is also humor. Tyltyl, at least, is quite aghast at so multitudinous an intrusion!

The ancestors are certainly a motley crew, rich man, poor man, beggar man, and thief are there, and also a sick man, a drunkard and a murderer. These last bid fair to make our hero forever unhappy, and all his children, by urging a marriage of base or mistaken motive. But the Great Ancestors assert their sway. Their spokesman is a caveman of redoubtable aspect, but ripe wisdom. As played by Augustin Duncan he makes perhaps the most vigorous impression of the evening. The result of this ancestral scrutiny of Tyltyl's First Loves is that they are all rejected, or at least put on probation.

And so they all troop along to The Abode of the Children. It is a spacious and dazzling region of azure and gold, a pictorial creation of imaginative, splendid effect—the highwater mark, in fact, of a production which in every detail of scene, lighting, and costume, is of the very first order. But it is difficult to escape an impression that the writing of the scene is not up to its investiture.

Coming after the richly human transactions of the Ancestors, it seems diaphanous to the point of evanishment. Compared to it the scene in "The Blue Bird" of the Land of Children Not Yet Born is a masterpiece of phantasy all compounded of impulsive human nature and lambent humor. Those pale wraiths of varying stature who float about so aimlessly are all too feeble to sway the motions of any heart, to say nothing of the quick impulses of adolescence. It is, however, Tyltyl's six children, all in their prenatal nighties, who choose his last and true love for him. The wanderings of the bevy of First Loves has been accompanied by a veiled figure who mutely pleads for recognition. The Ancestors have sensed in her an interesting possibility. But it remains for her six children to pounce upon her with instant recognition of their mother.

Tyltyl is still at a loss to place the maiden. But in the morning, after he has awakened from his dream, a neighbor and her daughter come in for Christmas breakfast. The daughter is the mute follower of his dreams—the little girl Joy, grown up, to whom, in the previous play, Tyltyl gave the bluebird. Their love scene, played by Sylvia Field in a flood of exquisite, virginal passion, is a fitting climax for a play which, with many inequalities and much baffling symbolism, is an undoubted work of originality and genius.

One of the symbolic figures, Destiny, embodied an idea of some concreteness and scored as well an undoubted success of laughter. On his first appearance, Destiny was of colossal proportions—a really terrible portent. With each successive entrance he became smaller and less impressive.

This was a result of meeting Light, a part not otherwise important, but exquisitely embodied by Edith Wynne Matthison. At his last appearance Destiny was a mere doll in long clothes, scornfully bandied about by the sextet of First Loves, and finally tossed aside by Light. Truly, modern science has pitifully shrunk the Grecian conception of an imminent and inevitable, inexorable fate.

FARRAR SINGS TOSCA TO OPERA PLAUDITS

Her Performance of the Tortured Heroine in the Tragic Key of Sardou.

GIULIO CRIMI AS MARIO

By JAMES GIBBONS HUNEKER.

Until the second act of "Tosca" was reached at the Metropolitan Opera House last night nothing of weighty moment occurred. Mario Cavaradossi painted on his picture in the Church of St. Andrea della Valle; Floria Tosca came to him clothed in gorgeous array; Baron Scarpia, as vindictive as ever, pursued the fugitive, and the Sacristan—shades of Gilibert!—was as futile as possible. However, one thing was soon remarked—the three singers who assumed the chief rôles were in better voice than last week. Geraldine Farrar's vocal indisposition had almost disappeared, though her voice was still clouded in "visse d'arti." The music is more suitable to her than Massenet's "Thaïs"; her voice is darker than it was, and the sombre tones of Puccini show her at her best—though that best on this occasion was not superlative. She was a picture of loveliness in each act, and her acting was in the tragic key of the situations.

Signor Crimi was another tenor from his "Radames." Then he did not do himself justice, and while he has not the timbre that may build a great singer it is only fair to say that his Mario was pleasing in Act I. and not so adequate in Act II. The reason was because of his unfortunate tendency to give out all he has in his chest too early in the scene, with the natural consequence that he is nearly impotent when he attempts a climax. Granting his agitation, dramatically be it understood, after that odious torture episode; still he should have held something in reserve for the peak. He did not; therefore he failed to achieve the meaning of the music, though his admirers among the railbirds thought otherwise. But Crimi is young, surprising young he looked as the painter, and he has excellent material to work upon.

As for Scotti, there is little to add to the praise and admiration long ago accorded his creation of Scarpia, a stage portrait that ranks with the celebrated ones in contemporary galleries, whether on the operatic or the dramatic stage. He, too, was in a resonant vocal condition, but if he had not been, if Farrar had not been, the intensity of their acting would have sufficed. Sardou is cruel to his heroines and as his greatest interpreter was Sarah Bernhardt, he knew, did this cunning old Wizard of Marly, how far to go in his vivisection of human misery.

His "optique" of the theatre is essentially false; yet how horribly he rasps our nerves in the second act. There the pathetic passes over into the domain of the pathologic. This scene ranks among the cruellist in the theatre, and Puccini's music gives it an additional turn of the screw. Physical suffering is always repulsive in the "fire of the footlights," and Mario's sufferings become positively unendurable to the spectator. The tension is not relieved in the acted version; in the lyric drama Puccini secures his penultimate effect by pity breeding music. It is a dramatic error, this halting of the breathless action; nevertheless the catastrophe follows like the clangor of antique trumpets.

Scotti last night ran the entire gamut of malevolence; lecherous, treacherous, unspeakably vile, he was the monster that Sardou painted, and not a credible human; but this great dramatic artist enlists a sort of covert sympathy. He is so monstrously depraved as to be extraordinary. Miss Farrar "played up" to him, and the entire act was a brilliant success, even if the guardian angels of pure tonal production hid their heads in dismay. What a terrific melodrama is "Tosca"! The lesser rôles were creditably cast. Moranzoni conducted with his accustomed discrimination. There was present a very large and a very enthusiastic audience.

MOON'S SCHOOLS
SHORTHAND IN 30 DAYS

★ They Helped To Win ★

Hundreds of Moon School students, at a time when the Government was in dire need of efficient stenographers and typists, were Trained By Us in 30 Days
They have done their bit, and we are justly proud of them. Only the fact that we employ the 30-Day Syl-lab-ic System (which we control) made it possible for use to do this. Other schools take half year for what we accomplish in thirty days
To convince you we give TRIAL LESSONS without cost, and if after becoming a pupil and attending 3 days you feel you cannot master stenography in 30 days we will return the entire fee. Save 5 precious months. Ask for the Moon catalog today by phone, write or call.

THE PRESIDENT GOES TO FRANCE.

President WILSON will attend the peace conference, and with all the fervor of HORACE praying for the safety of VIRGIL in his not overperilous voyage to the bounds of Attica, we shall bespeak for him every favoring circumstance of sea and sky and all good fortune of honors and welcomings, and in the great council of the nations a potent influence in "shaping the greater outlines of the final "treaty." Even though it regret his decision, the country will understand that he can best judge of the need of his going. Undoubtedly he must be consulted about the terms of the pact of peace. It is even more essential that he have a part in giving form to the constitution of the League of Nations, of which he is a convinced and distinguished champion. Nor can it be denied that personal participation in the discussions will have manifest advantages over exchange of views by ocean cable.

He will be the first President of the United States to pass from under the folds of its flag to lands beyond the Federal jurisdiction. The precedent he sets aside is but one of many that war has brushed away—old custom yielding to new needs and established usage to present expediency. The American people will heed all that but little when they read of the ceremonial greetings and honors that will be accorded to him by the chief men and the people of the nations to whose cause his profound insight, his clear understanding of moral principle, his gift of utterance, and his eloquence in the defense of human rights have rendered such priceless service.

Conclusions of some interest are deducible from Mr. WILSON's statement announcing his purpose. He will set sail "immediately after the opening of the regular session of Congress." As he goes for conference and discussion, it must be assumed that the statesmen of the other nations participating in the work of drawing up the treaty will be on the ground when he arrives. The time will be the middle of December.

This, however, does not necessarily mean that the conference which will conclude peace is to meet so early as that; it very possibly indicates preliminary deliberation between our representatives and those of the nations associated with us as to the chief provisions which should be embodied in the treaty.

The President does not expect to remain "throughout the sessions of the formal peace conference," from which it may be inferred that he wishes to be present "at the outset" to impart to the other Governments his views upon the "greater outlines" of the treaty, leaving details for the attention of the delegates from the United States, whose names "will be presently announced."

Finally, the President "expects to sail for France." If that means that the conference will sit at Versailles or Paris, there will be general and great satisfaction in this country. Many reasons of convenience and propriety point to the capital of that nation whose people have borne with such heroism the trials and sufferings of war as the place where the final act should take form; and the voice of history somewhat loudly proclaims Versailles as the fitting spot for undoing unforgotten wrongs for which the guiltiest of nations now comes to enforced repentance.

THE PACIFIC ISLANDS.

The Australian Parliament passed a resolution in July, 1917, approving the declaration of Mr. WALTER LONG, British Secretary of State for the Colonies, that none of the captured German colonial possessions would, in any circumstances, be returned to Germany, and affirming that any proposal to restore captured German territories near the Australian Continent would be particularly distasteful to "the people of the Commonwealth "and prejudicial to their interests, as "well as to the future peace of the "world." Last Sunday the Australian Senate passed a resolution reciting that it is essential to the future welfare of Australia that the captured possessions in the Pacific now occupied by Australian and New Zealand troops should not be returned to Germany. The German islands of the Samoan group were taken by the New Zealanders; New Guinea and some adjoining islands by the Australians. That Germany should ever be allowed to recover these or the Marshall, Ladrone, and Caroline Islands, now in the hands of the Japanese, is incredible. Coaling stations, naval and air bases, coigns of vantage, points to command and assail the trade routes of the world—that is what Germany wanted islands in the Pacific for.

German New Guinea marches for hundreds of miles with Australian New Guinea. It is too near the harbors of Queensland and New South Wales. It is nearer than Tasmania to the Commonwealth. In German hands it is a perpetual danger to Sydney and the safety of the trade route along the northern coast of Australia. Of course, the natives would be infinitely better off under Australia.

ONLY TWO DAYS LEFT.

The woman who said she could not look her children in the face if she had a cent left on Christmas morning spoke with that true spirit which should move all the people in their response to the appeals made in the United War Work Fund campaign. We shall all take part in the welcome to our soldiers when they return; certainly those who have given generously to the fund will have an added pleasure in the welcome because of their giving.

We do not mean that everybody should give up the last cent—that would be improvident. But contributions should be made not only by those who will not miss at all the sum given, but by those who will honestly feel, and have a right to feel, that they are making a sacrifice. Really that should be the chief joy of contributing, the comfortable sense of having done something for others even at cost to one's self. A man or woman who gives up something desired, longed for, but not actually needed, in order to supply to the American soldiers what they really need and ought to have for their comfort and protection, will doubtless find greater pleasure in the consciousness of having done the right thing than would have come from possession of the object desired but relinquished.

The subscription account to date is not satisfactory, we all ought to see that. Up to yesterday some twenty-six States had exceeded their quota, but the total subscribed was only $126,000,000, barely one-half the sum desired by the organized workers for the fund. New York had subscribed a little less than $27,000,000. New York has never failed of its quota in any of the money "drives" of the war; it must not fail this time. The campaign was extended two days because of time necessarily lost during the rejoicings over the signing of the armistice last week. Two days only remain, the campaign closes tomorrow night. Let us have a glorious finish that will carry New York's subscriptions well beyond the allotment.

TWO BILLION PASSENGERS.

Remark was made a few days ago upon figures showing that the rapid transit passengers of this city numbered a round billion. Now the Public Service Commission gives figures including surface riders, and the billion is nearly doubled. The increase of passengers is such an old story that interest attaches rather to the changes, and they are worth attention. Surface travel is still increasing in all boroughs but Brooklyn and Queens. In Brooklyn there is a decrease of about thirteen millions, and in Queens a decrease of about eight millions. These decreases are as welcome as the increases used to be, for they show the working out of the calculations on which the city embarked upon the dual subway enterprise. The experts of the builders of the dual subway predicted that "sixty "million double fares will go into the "single fare." The dual subway is still incomplete, but in a single year of imperfect facilities there appears to have come into sight nearly one-third of the expectation. The figures show that the decrease in surface riders is made up mostly of riders who now pay single fares on the subways which are reaching into the boroughs where the figures show apparent decrease. No suggestion of actual decrease of the riders individually within New York is possible. What is shown is a change of travel, not of population nor of ability to pay fares.

The dual subway having given such earnest of fulfillment of promise, it is a fair assumption that soon the passengers will be keeping in their pockets three million dollars annually which otherwise they would have paid out for the privilege of paying for two rides instead of one, and neither of the rides as good in itself as the one for which they now pay a single nickel. It is true that the dual system shows a deficit under present conditions; but they are temporary, and were they to continue the city would still be a gainer. For the other part of the dual system's benefits lies in its effect upon tax values. The expectation was that the dual subway would bring an increase of ten million dollars in taxes to the City Treasury, and here, too, there has been substantial realization on account. In recent years the outer boroughs have shown increases where the central borough has shown little if any.

Never was the outlook in this direction better than now. The war has brought a sudden prosperity to landlords in Manhattan. After the war's influence declines the prospect in Manhattan depends upon the realization of the promise of prosperity in the outer boroughs. That depends upon the completion of the dual subway more than upon any other one factor. In the first full year after its completion in its original form there was an increase of 120,858,479 riders. It will be interesting to compare the growth in the first full year of the dual system. Last year the increase on all lines was 56,670,087. But in 1906 the total was a mere 1,251,841,175, against an approximate two billions now. When the Broadway (Manhattan) subway was opened there was a calculation that the riders on that short link were saving four thousand dollars daily in fares. That will go a considerable way toward helping with the rent bill, especially when the homes thus made accessible are cheaper and better than the riders could afford in Manhattan.

There is a particular reason for bringing these facts out at a time when there is unprofitable wrangling over city transit matters, and irresponsible proposals for betterment along untried lines. There should be a cool reception for the proposals of improvements upon the dual subway by those who opposed it originally, and make a merit of steadfastness in their opposition. The dual system is the city's property, and eventually will redeem itself from the lien of its cost. The prime duty for all lovers of the city is to insist upon its completion before anything else is undertaken.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

Thanksgiving Day this year will evoke a gratitude deeper, a spirit of reverence more devout, than America has felt for many years. The celebration of 1918 will always be memorable. Thanksgiving had come to be a day of feasting and outdoor sports, a welcome holiday, but no longer closely associated with the tradition and custom that made it a semi-religious festival in Colonial days. In New England the last generation regarded Thanksgiving as a day when families were to meet round the board of good cheer, for which the housewife had made a week's preparation. Thanksgiving comes but once a year, was the feeling in those days. Christmas was not held in so high regard. Thanksgiving was the real day of reunion and rejoicing, of good-fellowship and affection. Everybody was natural, kindly, sympathetic, aglow with the old love of home, loyal to the memories of youth. But some of the sentiment and fervor has passed away from the New England celebration. Thanksgiving Day no longer kindles the emotions that made it the great day of the calendar, for New England has changed with the times, and so many of her sons and daughters now live under other skies, having migrated too far to return often. Elsewhere in the country Thanksgiving Day has never known the significance, the sincerity, of the New England festival.

This year Americans from Maine to Texas, from Atlantic to Pacific, will turn to Thanksgiving Day with a spiritual exaltation which President WILSON has with such feeling expressed in his proclamation:

> God has in His good pleasure given us peace. It has not come as a mere cessation of arms, a relief from the strain and tragedy of war. It has come as a great triumph of Right. Complete victory has brought us, not peace alone, but the confident promise of a new day as well, in which justice shall replace force and jealous intrigue among the nations. Our gallant armies have participated in a triumph which is not marred or stained by any purpose of selfish aggression. In a righteous cause they have won immortal glory and have nobly served their Nation in serving Mankind.

There will be nothing half-hearted, nothing perfunctory, about the celebration of Thanksgiving this year. It will be a day of prayer as well as of feasting and rejoicing; a day when thoughts will wing across the sea to the manhood of America so lately in arms for the greatest cause in the annals of time. The flag should be displayed in every church to mark appropriate services.

IMITATION BOLSHEVIKI.

Before and during the war the American Majority Socialists were faithful Germans. If we may believe the statement of Mr. VICTOR BERGER at a meeting in Chicago, "all [Ameri-"can] Socialists are pro-Bolshevist "today." If that is the case, the American Majority Socialists are no longer German, for the German Socialists, at least the great majority of them, outside of the Spartacus gladiators, are not Bolshevist nor pro-Bolshevist. As accomplices in ruining Russia the Bolsheviki were necessary to the Germans. In Germany order and discipline are the tradition. The soldiers are ready to enforce them should any amateur imitation Soviets show too much zeal. Mr. BERGER had not a word to say against the murderous autocracy, crushing every liberty, which Bolshevism in Russia is. If he had been in Petrograd he probably would have been shot as a man of education, of property, a bourgeois. If he had dared to express any opinion not satisfactory to the Lenine-Trotsky oligarchy his paper would have been taken from him. He has been wailing about the restrictions on the freedom of the press in the United States, restrictions, that is, on the utterance of sedition and disloyalty. Yet he says that he and his party are pro-Bolshevist.

"We have the same conditions they had in Germany and Russia," said Mr. BERGER. "We have the same kind of stomachs." The pretended grievances and wrath of these well-fed howlers for Bolshevism are amusing.

Most of the speeches at the Chicago meeting were made in German. In German "The International" was sung. "The Star-Spangled Banner" was not sung. In short, it was a meeting of German Socialists, inhabitants of the German islands in Chicago, who have not kept up even with German socialism as it is now played in Germany. Though Mr. BERGER patronizingly says that he is "in no way opposed to our flag," but "the "International is the bigger flag of "the two"; though speakers denounce the collection of funds for United War Work; though Government agents have to be present on the watch for disloyal utterances or German propaganda; though these Teutons affect to revive that international socialism which the Socialists of Germany killed in 1914, it would be a waste of caloric for the rest of us to get angry. These people are not numerous, not important. Their "class consciousness" stuff, their pro-Bolshevism, is as loathsome to most Americans as their pro-Germanism was. That brave and patriotic Socialist, Dr. FRANK BOHN, told their New York "comrades" the other day that only in a city or two, and there sporadically, has this sort of socialism any strength. That strength will wane as the English language, Americanism, democracy make their way among the disciples or advertisers of Bolshevism in this country.

POLAND AND HER NEIGHBORS.

Co-operation and reciprocal concession are just as necessary to keep the peace which we have won as they were in the winning of the war; and nowhere is this need greater than among the newly liberated nations of Eastern Europe. Yet already tendencies are visible which are likely to make a settlement harder to reach, and more unstable when it has been reached.

The Democratic Mid-European Union, organized from the representatives of these peoples in this country—some of whom belong to the chief representative committees of their races—has taken the initiative in trying to combine all these peoples upon a program which they will support against the danger of a revival of German ambition. Hardly a month after this body was organized the Poles withdrew, and they show no intention of going back.

Their excuse had a certain plausibility; Ukrainian troops, apparently with some German and Austrian support, were fighting the Poles in Galicia. Consequently Mr. PADEREWSKI withdrew from the Union because he would not stay in a body where the Ukrainians were represented. But the Ukrainians in the Democratic Mid-European Union had already proposed to the Polish delegates to join in an appeal to their peoples in Europe to stop fighting and leave the Galician question to the peace conference. This the Poles refused.

The Ukrainian movement may have been supported in Austria; there may have been German troops involved in this Galician affair. But Mr. PADEREWSKI's memory is short; only last March the Polish Army raised by the organization which he represents concluded a treaty of alliance with the German forces in Russia. The Allies did not close the door to Mr. PADEREWSKI and Mr. DMOWSKI when that happened; and very soon this Polish Army found, as the Ukrainians are likely to find, that it was better to fight against the Germans than with them. Certainly neither the Galician nor the Lithuanian national movement can be dismissed as a pure figment of German intrigue.

From the Poles there is to be expected a willingness to co-operate with the other nations. It is true, as Mr. DMOWSKI says, that a revived Poland, a strong Poland, is the best bulwark against German penetration in Russia; but a Poland which includes, say, twenty million Poles and fifteen million people of other races who hate Polish domination will not be strong. It will be a double source of weakness; the oppressed minorities will look outside for support against the Poles, and the Poles may have to follow the recent unhappy example of the Magyars and look outside for support against rising dissatisfaction. The problem of Eastern Europe is not going to be solved by setting up any new and unwelcome dominion; it will have to be solved by conciliation, by concession, by mutual recognition that all races have rights.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

He Really Did Have a Grievance.

Reflection on Mr. FORD's unpleasant experience at the Friars-Lambs "Frolic-Gambol" creates that painful confusion of emotion that always results when everybody concerned in an episode seems to have earned both sympathy and censure in about equal measure.

It can hardly be doubted, for instance, that when Mr. FORD was selected in such a public place for direct and persistent demands for money he was subjected to something more than discourtesy—a fact that was recognized later in the apologies of those who had thus embarrassed him—and that he therefore had excuse and even reason for the resentment he manifested. He was quite within his rights, too, in selecting the place and time that pleased him for his giving to the War Work Fund, and he showed some courage in standing out against coercion, particularly as yielding to it would have been so easy for him and would have won, at no appreciable sacrifice, the applause of which many people are fond and not a few too fond.

On the other hand, if he did not intend to give, at a place where giving was expected, why did he go there? Moreover, a good deal of the sympathy he otherwise would have received he forfeited by his certainly unwise remarks about a "bunch of bankers" whose object was to perpetuate militarism. That is just nonsense, and that he does not know it is—well, call it a pity.

But They Meant So Well!

Turning, now, from Mr. FORD to those who pestered and humiliated him, one is confronted by the same difficulties of judgment. Their intentions were so virtuous, and the cause for which they were working was so extremely good, that criticism of their method can hardly be justified on any other ground than that the method was less likely to be productive of contributions than one more regardful of the common amenities would have been. And that question cannot be answered offhand.

The "drives" of which we have had so many have all succeeded, in spite of the use in them all of devices more or less repugnant to sensitive taste—of devices that savored too much of begging and sometimes verged on blackmail. Again it is the end sought that pleads for pardon and probably earns it.

Nevertheless, it will be a relief when a return can be made to the rules which forbid the solicitation of funds on the street by agents of not well-accredited responsibility, when we shall no longer see soldiers engaged in the unsoldierly task of asking for small coins, and especially when the excellent rules of the Board of Education as to the collection of money in the schools regain their former rigidity.

Trappings His Only Greatness.

If "WILLIAM HOHENZOLLERN" had fallen from so high to his present state less obviously as the result of his own acts, there would be some, and even much, reluctance felt for treating him otherwise than as the victim of cruel fate. That, however, he is not, and so deliberate, as well as so serious, was his offending that he has no claim for a closing of eyes to his crimes—no right to expect the tenderness of consideration he never gave.

The chances are, apparently, that he will pass the rest of his life, not happily, indeed, but in a retirement untroubled by the material cares common to the great majority of mankind, and it is a source of entirely legitimate satisfaction to call attention to the poor figure he cuts, now that he has been stripped of his crown, his sceptre, and his imperial robes.

These, as a matter of fact, were all that differentiated him from other folk. In and since his downfall he has shown nothing of the heroic, nothing of the personal courage, of the willingness to die for a cause, that have marked so many million men in so many armies, including his own. If he sincerely believed his right to rule was divine, it was the most cowardly form of desertion for him to flee his country the moment he feared for his personal safety. By so doing he made certain and immediate the ruling of Germany by somebody with no pretense to a divine authorization.

Many another royal villain has dared to die, standing erect and face to the foe, but this poor Emperor scuttles off into unwelcoming Holland, and leaves his sons and his wife to take care of themselves! But it is no wonder he is most of all afraid of his own people. He promised them victory and loot, only to rob them of the wealth, respect, and happiness they already had in such abundant measure, and he substituted for it all a crushing defeat, pinching hunger, and the contempt and detestation of the whole world.

A Fund of $500 Asked For.

Mr. H. is dead after a long illness with cancer, and his wife is left to face the world with three young children, the eldest a girl only 10 years of age. All during her husband's illness she struggled to support them, and continued to do so after his death, even though the doctor told her that she was overworking and would surely break down. She had promised her husband that she would always keep the children with her. Now she has developed heart trouble and can do nothing but light work at odd times, and the eyesight of the eldest girl is failing. The Brooklyn Bureau of Charities has come to their rescue at this time of black despair, and already Mrs. H. has taken on fresh courage. A weekly allowance to cover living expenses will be given the family if a fund of $500 can be raised for the next twelve months. Large or small contributions toward this fund may be mailed to the bureau at 69 Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn, marked for "0304 T."

"AFTER THE SPUR, CORN."

We have harried him and shot him,
We were gay and glad to pot him,
To "Do 'im in," as Tommy says,
To "Do him up," say we,
And the Frenchman, in his lingo,
Puts it otherwise, but—Jingo!—
We talked the self-same language
When the word was "Victory!"

All around this whirling planet,
We have sent the men to span it,
In many sorts of uniforms,
From staff to dungaree;
And they took the job and liked it,
And they sailed the seas and hiked it,
It made no sort of difference,
So they went to Victory.

Yes, and, now the work's completed,
And the Hun is quite defeated,
We'd like to take our ease again,
Delighted to be free,
When along comes Fritz to tell us,
As his Gott has failed to fell us,
He'll gladly take a snack with us—
In lieu of Victory!

Though we've greatly yearned to carve him,
We can't see our way to starve him,
And his wife and children crying
Add power to his plea;
There are words we well might utter,
But we'll sell him bread and butter—
There's the quality of mercy
In Allied Victory!

SUCCESS IN SIGHT IN WAR WORK DRIVE

New York, with Two Days Yet, Has $27,763,978 of its $35,000,000 Quota.

FINAL REPORT THURSDAY

Teams at Waldorf Dinner Turn In $8,000,000 in Pledges — W. Rockefeller Gives a Million.

New York City has contributed $27,763,978 of its quota of $35,000,000 to the United War Work campaign. Announcement to this effect was made last night at the Waldorf-Astoria, where the members of the thirty canvassing teams and of the various divisions engaged in the drive in this city, met at dinner and reported the amounts received.

Reports were also made of the results of the canvassing since Friday, when the teams last met at luncheon. The results showed that the teams and the divisions received a total of $8,800,000 in contributions in the last three days. The highest single amount announced last night as having been received since Friday was a personal gift of Mr. and Mrs. William Rockefeller for $1,000,000.

Joseph P. Day was to have auctioned a set of menus last night, but he did not do so. It was said by an official of the campaign that all auctions would be discontinued because of the incident on Sunday night, when Henry Ford left the Metropolitan Opera House, where an entertainment by the Friars and the Lambs was being given, because of the manner in which United States Marshal Thomas D. McCarthy solicited him for a contribution.

The speakers at the dinner were Dr. John H. Finley, State Commissioner of Education; Dr. John R. Mott, Director General of the War Work campaign, and William M. Kingsley, Chairman of the men's teams. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., presided.

The final meeting of the teams and industry members will be held at the Chamber of Commerce at noon on Thursday. It was announced that New York still has a little more than $8,000,000 to contribute in order to make up its quota, and the canvassers were urged not to let up in the drive until the entire amount and a generous oversubscription was in sight.

In his address Dr. Mott said that, reading between the lines of the countless telegrams which have been pouring in on him from every State in the Union, he became aware that the eyes of the whole country are now on New York.

"Not only the eyes of the whole country, but the eyes of the men overseas, are all on us," he added, "and I do not need to say that when we go down to meet them as they stream down the gangplank, we will not be ashamed to look them right squarely in the face, because we will not have failed them in this, as we have not failed them in any other undertaking, here in New York City, since this war began."

At the end of the meeting Cleveland H. Dodge, the Treasurer of the Campaign Committee, made a formal motion that the drive be extended two days, until tomorrow night. The motion was carried unanimously, and it was decided to raise $10,000,000 additional in the New York City campaign. This will bring the grand total in this city up to $37,000,000, or $2,000,000 above the quota.

$2,000,000 Added Up-State.

The total pledges for the nation up to yesterday were not available at national headquarters, 60 Vanderbilt Avenue. However, it became increasingly apparent to the campaign managers yesterday that the final success of the drive is dependent upon the responses of the populous States where the great bulk of the fund is to raised and where pledges are furthest from goals set.

Reports last night showed that there had been an increase of $2,000,000 to the totals from the upper sections of the State, and that from the present rush of subscriptions it was apparent that New York State would go over the top with some to spare.

Connecticut sent in $1,000,000 and went over the top yesterday with a percentage of 126 per cent. The quota of the State is $2,394,000, and it is expected that the $4,000,000 mark will be reached.

Vermont went over its $600,000 mark by $50,000 yesterday, while canvassers in New Jersey collected $1,000,000, putting that State beyond its $5,000,000 quota. Maryland passed its quota of $1,432,000, and is already beyond the $2,000,000 mark. North Carolina has raised $1,041,000, or 125 per cent. of its quota of $858,000.

Arizona is the banner State, with 202 per cent. of its quota in hand, while Worcester, Mass., leads all cities, with $1,071,000 subscribed, or somewhat in excess of $6 for every man, woman, and child in the town.

$13,912 from Interborough Sales.

Theodore P. Shonts, President of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, made the following statement yesterday:

"The Directors of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company authorized, for the United War Work Campaign, the donation of 10 per cent. of the gross receipts for all tickets on both the elevated and subway lines sold on Friday, Nov. 15.

"The gross sales were $139,120. The fund will therefore receive $13,912. The money will be distributed pro rata in the boroughs of Manhattan, Brooklyn, Queens, and the Bronx.

"The whole number of tickets sold was 2,783,554. Of these 1,664,075 were sold on the subway and 1,119,479 on the elevated. The tickets are good until used."

Many inquiries have been received at the United War Work Campaign headquarters, 680 Fifth Avenue, as to where individual contributions might be sent. Such contributions should be addressed and checks should be made payable either to Cleveland H. Dodge, Treasurer, or the United War Work Campaign, Inc., at 680 Fifth Avenue.

Bank and Industrial Canvass.

Among the contributions to the fund reported yesterday were the following from banks in Manhattan:

National Park Bank	$25,000
Chemical National Bank	15,000
Metropolitan Bank	10,000
Hanover National Bank	20,000
Title Guarantee and Trust Co.	10,000
Garfield National Bank	5,000
Public National Bank	2,500
State Bank	2,500

A. H. Wiggin of the Chase National Bank, who is Chairman of the committee handling the contributions to the fund from banks and trust companies, reported that up to the close of business Saturday, Nov. 16, this section of the industrial canvass had contributed $704,062.

An additional contribution of $10,000 to the fund from the United States Rubber Company was also reported yesterday. The American Trading Company for itself and employes subscribed $5,261.

The Nestlé Food Company has given $30,000 to the fund, of which $15,000 will be paid over to the Manhattan Campaign Committee and the rest distributed at other points throughout the country.

The Newspaper Section.

Further contributions to the United War Work Fund, announced by Louis Wiley, Chairman of the newspaper publishing section of the industrial canvass, bring the total to date for that section to $23,737.59. Employes in the various newspaper plants thus far solicited have given $6,187.59 to the fund, and the publishing corporations themselves have given to date $17,550, including a contribution of $10,000 from THE NEW YORK TIMES, one of $1,250 from the New York World, and one of $250 from the New York Tribune.

Edward Davis, President of the Green Room Club, a theatrical organization which has been working in the interest of the United War Work Campaign at the Pennsylvania Railroad Station and the Grand Central Station, announced yesterday that two teams in competition had collected a total, up to Saturday night, of $10,948.69. He said the collections at the two stations would be continued until the end of the drive.

Of the amount named, the team at the Pennsylvania Station collected $4,381.19 and that at the Grand Central $6,567.50. John C. Peebles is Chairman of the Committee having the Green Room Club drive in charge, and the Captains of the contesting teams were Harry Huguenot for the Pennsylvania Station and Kempton Greene for the Grand Central team.

The Victory Boys and Girls Earn and Give Division of the United War Work Campaign are utilizing the two-day extension of the campaign to obtain a 100 per cent. enrollment of the 823 public, private, and parochial schools of Greater New York.

Manhattan's Stuyvesant High School at present leads all others with an enrollment of 87 per cent. of its 4,000 pupils. There is a close race between the Bronx and Queens Boroughs and between Manhattan and Brooklyn Boroughs for the honor of the highest enrollment.

"Daredevil" Schreyer, who did his sensational bicycle high dive on Saturday afternoon at Columbus Circle, will repeat it at 2:30 this afternoon. The carnival acts along Broadway will be held at approximately the same hours as heretofore, beginning at noon and extending through the afternoon and evening today and tomorrow. Among these will be "Daredevil" Schreyer, Quincey, the diver at Greeley Square, Calvert, the high wire performer in Madison Square, Nervo in his plunge at Times Square, Raymond, the straight-jacket man at Times Square, the Ringenses in Bryant Park, De Phil & De Phil at Fiftieth Street and Broadway, Bigney, the high diver, and many other attractions. The "Human Squirrel" will ascend and descend the Bush Building in Forty-second Street, near Broadway, thirty stories, by means of a hand-over-hand climb up a one-inch rope at 2 o'clock each day.

WHITMAN'S PROCLAMATION.

Governor Enjoins Thanksgiving for Victory and for Peace.

ALBANY, Nov. 18.—Governor Whitman issued his Thanksgiving Day proclamation today. It follows:

"Never have the American people had more cause than now for rejoicing or for the expression of profound gratitude and Thanksgiving to Him who doeth all things well.

"While our hearts go out in loving sympathy to our own people and to the people of the nations allied with us who have been called upon to mourn the loss of their nearest and dearest who have made the supreme sacrifice, we are thankful that our country has met the test, and that her sons have been worthy of the proudest traditions of the Republic.

"For victory, for peace, and for blessings unnumbered, let us give thanks to Almighty God.

"Now, therefore, I, Charles S. Whitman, Governor of this State, do proclaim the 28th day of November, 1918, Thanksgiving Day, and direct that it be observed in accordance with the time-honored custom throughout the State of New York."

KING THANKS AMERICANS.

Says In Anglo-American Unity His Finest Hopes Are Realized.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—At the close of the entertainment given for American soldiers and sailors and women war workers at the Palace Theatre tonight, Vice Admiral William S. Sims, commander of the American naval forces in British waters, read a message he had received from the King in answer to a letter sent to the British sovereign by himself and Major Gen. Biddle on behalf of the American sailors and soldiers present. The King's answer read:

"It is with feelings of gratitude and sincere pleasure that I received the letter you addressed to me in the name of the American sailors and soldiers who are assembled this evening under the auspices of the British Committee for Entertaining American Forces. In the unity of our cause and our memories, fostered by comradeship in arms, I see the realization of my finest hopes, that the American and English peoples, united by ties of closest friendship, will ever advance together along the path of progress and civilization.

"GEORGE, R. I."

Cheers were given for King George and the national anthem was sung with enthusiasm.

FOCH'S TRIBUTE TO BRITISH

Says Their Hammer Blows Were Decisive Factors in Crushing Foe.

PARIS, Nov. 18, (via Montreal.)—Marshal Foch, in a speech at a luncheon given in his honor yesterday by Field Marshal Haig, at British Army Headquarters, said that the hammer blows dealt by the British were decisive factors in the final crushing of the enemy.

The Marshal afterward received the British Army commanders, congratulating them warmly upon the tenacity of their troops.

Nominates Davis for Ambassador.

SERBS IN ACCORD WITH JUGOSLAVS

NO COERCION BY SERBIA

Jugoslavs in Outside Territory to Declare Their Wishes Freely and Fully by a Plebiscite.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Details of the agreement for the union of the Jugoslav provinces of Austria with the Kingdom of Serbia which was come to at Geneva on Nov. 7 between Nicholas Pashitch, Prime Minister of Serbia, and the delegates of the National Council of Agram (Croatia) as representative of the Serbs, Croats, and Slovens of the former Austro-Hungarian Empire, are furnished by Professor Voyslav M. Yovanovitch, Director of the Official Serbian Bureau of Information in Washington.

The delegates to the conference were the President of the Jugoslav Parliamentary group of the Vienna Reichsrat, Dr. Anton Koroshetz, and two other members of the Agram National Council, Dr. Chingria and Dr. Chorovitch, Premier Pashitch and Dr. Ante Trumbitch, President of the Jugoslav Committee in London.

"In a written note presented to the conference," said Professor Yovanovitch, "the delegates from Agram asked the Serbian Government and the other allied Governments to recognize the National Council of Agram as the supreme power of a State newly constituted within the frontiers of the Serbo-Croato-Slovene nation, hitherto being parts of the Austro-Hungarian monarchy, and as Commander in Chief of the fleet of that State, until the formalities of the final union with Serbia were carried out.

"They further asked that the Jugoslav troops should be recognized by the Allies as a belligerent and friendly force, and gave Dr. Trumbitch full powers to represent the National Council of Agram before the allied Governments until a common organ was created to assure the common diplomatic representation.

"The conference unanimously hailed with enthusiasm the creation of a common Ministry for the United Serbian, Croat, and Slovene State.

"The conference further proclaimed that there were no longer any interior political or customs frontiers between the entire Serbian, Croat, and Slovene territory. The local administration of the Jugoslav countries will not for the time being undergo any modification. The changes to be made will be definitely settled by the Constituent Assembly.

"The conference further protested against the action of the Italian authorities on Jugoslav territory.

"This important statement," added Professor Yovanovitch, "proves once more how absurd the rumors were which have been spread recently by the enemy propaganda in neutral countries (and which have found an echo in the American press) regarding an alleged divergence of views between the Serbian Government, the Jugoslav Committee of London, and the newly created National Council of Agram.

"The Serbian Government has already notified the allied Governments officially that Serbia recognizes the National Council of Agram as the legal representative of the Serbs, Croats, and Slovenes of the former Dual Monarchy, leaving to the people of the Jugoslav provinces full liberty to make known by a plebiscite whether or not they desire a union with Serbia.

"Serbia has always taken her stand on the principle of nationality and self-determination of people, and she is doing it now. She does not wish to impose her rule on any part of the territories inhabited by the Jugoslavs outside of Serbia, which should be given the fullest freedom of choice of their future government."

SPEED UP SUBWAY TODAY.

Hedley Says Company Has Men Now to Run More Trains.

Express trains during the rush hours will begin running on the subways of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company this morning at intervals of two minutes and fifteen seconds. This is fifteen seconds slower than the Public Service Commission's new schedule of last Summer, but it is about fifteen seconds faster than the company has heretofore been able to accomplish. The main reason for this improvement is the fact that the company has been able to increase its force of men, and in due time, with the securing of more men, the running time of the trains will be further improved.

Frank Hedley, Vice President and General Manager of the company, testified to these facts before the Public Service Commission yesterday during the inquiry into the service, power, and equipment of the company. He expressed the hope that by the end of the week the express trains would be running at two-minute intervals.

The company, he said, had plenty of cars and other equipment.

PARIS, Nov. 14.—The Municipal Council gave a reception today in honor of the American Red Cross. The City Hall, where the reception was held, was magnificently decorated, and the great reception room was illuminated for the first time since the outbreak of the war.

The Government was represented by M. Mourier, Under Secretary of State for Medical Service. Marshal Joffre was also present and received an ovation.

M. Autrand, Prefect of the Department of the Seine-et-Oise, spoke of France's gratitude to the American Red Cross. Henry P. Davison, Chairman of the Red Cross War Council, replying, said:

"We are more indebted to France than she can ever be to us, for her heroic resistance saved not only herself but the civilized world, including the United States of America. When we saw that the war was being made on civilians—on women and children and the aged and poor—the Red Cross determined to come to their aid."

Mr. Davison concluded by expressing the hope that France and the United States would fight the "battles of peace side by side and start a new and better world on the ruins of the old."

NEED OF INDUSTRIAL PEACE

Manufacturers Urge Co-operation of Employers and Wage Earners.

The National Association of Manufacturers, with a membership of 30,000, in a statement issued yesterday by its President, Stephen C. Mason, urged industrial peace in settling post-war problems, and stated that the organization stood firmly for the spirit of patriotic industrial co-operation in the working out of reconstruction problems.

"In the time of our national emergency, during the progress of hostilities in France," the statement said, "there was born in our American industrial relations the general realization that joint action by employers and wage earners was a patriotic duty and privilege. This realizataion of joint responsibility we believe ought to be the ruling factor in meeting the problems of peace as well as war."

In conclusion, the statement said that the National Association of Manufacturers pledged itself to "that spirit of common interest in our industrial affairs which the war fostered so greatly among all citizens concerning national duty."

LAST OF GERMANS OUT OF BRUSSELS

ANTWERP EXPECTS KING

Road from Ghent Beflagged Against His Coming—Invited to Visit Paris.

PARIS, Nov. 18.—The last German troops left Brussels yesterday, according to a dispatch from the Havas correspondent on the Belgian front. Extraordinary scenes were witnessed around the North Station, from which most of the enemy soldiers departed. Wishing to have money to take home with them, they sold everything they owned or had stolen. Some laid out objects on the sidewalk and cried their wares in loud voices. Among the articles offered for sale were blankets, clothing, and shoes, as well as wool and copper goods taken from the inhabitants of the city.

President Poincaré has sent a congratulatory telegram to King Albert on the occasion of the approaching entry of his Majesty into Brussels, and has invited the King and Queen to come to Paris. King Albert in reply thanked the President and assured him that he would accept his invitation.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 18, (Havas.)—M. Lemonnier, the Acting Burgomaster of Brussels, has written the delegates of the German Government giving details of twelve instances where German soldiers extorted sums of money from the inhabitants of Brussels on Nov. 12 and 13. (The armistice signed on Nov. 11 expressly prohibited such action.)

The sums taken varied from 500 francs to 110,000 marks, which were taken from a bank. In some cases the pretense was made that the soldiers were acting for the German authorities; in others that shots had been fired from houses by civilians.

"These calumnious imputations," adds the letter, "recall the pretexts which preceded the destruction of Louvain."

WITH THE ALLIED ARMIES IN FRANCE AND BELGIUM, Nov. 18, (Associated Press.)—The City of Antwerp appears to have come through the years of German occupation well, as compared with many other cities, though the people suffered under the load of exceedingly high prices.

Great preparations have been under way for the entry of the King and Queen, and the road between Ghent and Antwerp is beflagged.

GHENT, Nov. 13, (Associated Press.)—King Albert, Queen Elizabeth, and Prince Leopold of Belgium made their official entrance into Ghent today. Huge crowds, delirious with enthusiasm, lined the streets. The royal party moved through cheering throngs amid showers of roses and chrysanthemums. Every balcony, window, and roof was covered with people, some of whom clung perilously to chimneys and cornices.

FRENCH REVIVE DUMAS PLAY

It is by the shortcomings of our predecessors that we can best value our own advancements. This fact was particularly well exemplified by the attempt of the French company at the Vieux Colombier to revive a play by Dumas fils. The choice itself was rather unfortunate, for "La Femme de Claude" is far from the best that the nineteenth century moralist school of literature produced. One cannot really think of any other motive than a desire to satisfy the prevalent interest in spy stories. It seems that the company felt itself morally obliged to make an allowance to the general public.

Césarine, the wife of Claude, is a wicked woman, who betrays her husband, and commits besides quite a number of other crimes. These her hsuband forgives her with a serenity worthy of an ideal husband. But to make of this quite common event a particularly exceptional one, the author introduces a German spy, whose tool Césarine becomes. Her passion leads her so far that she yields to the spy's shameless proposals, and with the help of Antonin, a young admirer of hers and a pupil of her husband's, she takes possession of the plans of Claude's invention, which is a cannon intended to end all wars. But before she has an opportunity to commit this crime, the deus ex machina appears in the person of the servant girl Edmee, who has listened at the door and tells her master of the machinations carried on between his wife and the spy. Claude, with a sober mind and superior resolution, shoots the woman who is a traitor to her country, although he had forgiven the adulteress.

Mme. Van Doren, in the title rôle, has tried her best to put into this artificial woman some humane semblance, and if she did not quite succeed, or even at times let her sincere desire carry her over the necessary limits, it most surely cannot be construed against her. It is perhaps because the vampire type has been overdone in recent times that we dislike an actress of Mme. Van Doren's abilities in such a rôle. It goes without saying that M. Charles Dullin developed all opportunities that the play offers.

Symbolic morality plays seem to have lost all interest for us. It is too painful to listen to long stretches of monologues and dialogues, in which the author expresses his moral, philosophical, and social views, when they really have no immediate bearing upon the plot. When they do have, the plot is so shaped that it should fit in that particular tirade. One must only think of Dumas's intention, to portray by Claude the perfect man, or conscience as he puts it, and by his wife, the evil spirit.

This play caused some sensation when it was written. Dumas had seriously to defend himself against the accusation that he demanded the death of all adulteresses. "Tue-la" was the slogan. But it really was the traitor for whom he demanded death.

PIANIST AND VIOLINIST PLAY

Aeolian Hall had a busy Monday yesterday, both afternoon and evening. Aurore La Croix, the Dawn of the Cross, and Helen Jeffrey, a forthright name, like her playing, held forth within the now sacred walls, where nothing disturbs music lovers assembled for the rites but distant ting-a-ling of a telephone or the too near cry of a voice that utters the prescribed phrase of the elevator, viz.: Going up! But these aberrations of tone, this sudden thrusting of the actual into the ideal, no longer matter to audiences. Doubtless the inhabitants of hades slowly become accustomed to the heat.

Miss La Croix was the pianist, one who made a decided impression at her first recital earlier in the season; and the violinist was Miss Jeffrey. Luckily, like Box and Cox in the play, they did not occupy the same spot at the same time. The pianist was not at her best in the beginning of her work, but at the end in a Theme and Variations by Royce. These were played by request. They are well worth while. The composer is a son of that great souled man with a great intellect, the late Professor Josiah Royce of Harvard. His son is a preceptor of music, counterpoint, and composition at the Ithaca Conservatory. He is one of the few men who doesn't absolutely pattern after Brahms in this not altogether obsolete form; therefore, his music is refreshing and individual. He squeezes his theme dry; he seizes it as does a bulldog, a cat, and shakes it in a final burst of glissandi, Royce has something to say and says it in the idiom of the pianoforte. There is no trace of the academic in these variations; no dry-as-dust pondering of a contrapuntal problem. Vitality informs every bar, yes, and scholarship and logic, mid a touch of the big style. Miss La Croix delivered them lovingly. Her encore, brilliant as it was, did not impress us despite its clear-cut rhythms and slam-bang bass. It was the "Winter Wind" study by Chopin, No. 11, opus 25.

The fourth Ballade just missed emotional significance. The pianist is liberal at times; her left hand is too matter of fact in its metronomic marking of the measures. She also played the B flat minor Mazurka and three Preludes in B flat, F, and D minor. A Venetian Barcarolle by Lendral proved refreshing. The lagoon was sullen the night the composer sat in the motor-propelled gondola. He had no doubt been at Bauer-Grunwald's café, hence his harmonies stood on their head, but delightfully. De Bussy's "Garden in the Rain" must have been a reflex of the weather outside. There was no haze, no shimmer in the interpretation. Oh! the brave, upright rain, and the large, sheltering umbrella! And the wet hen paddling about in that second subject. We recall Debussy playing this piece for us, a piece which is a mixture of Bach and absinthe. Miss La Croix presented it to her hearers as if she were a prohibitionist. Water, water everywhere, and not a drop to drink. However, she is an excellent artist, and her touch and style are as blonde as her hair.

In the evening Helen Jeffrey, no newcomer here, played a program of violin music beginning with Handel and ending with Samuel Gardner, including the Bach chaconne, the d' Ambrosio B minor concerto, and smaller compositions by Rachmaninoff and Godowsky. Where in the world do all these charming and talented young women come from? A violinist of the "female sect," as Artemus Ward used to say, three decades ago in America was almost a scandal. Dr. Johnson was thrown at her head; even that truly great artist, Camilla Urso, had to play, after a manner, second fiddle to any male mediocrity who fiddled. But we have changed all that sort of thing nowadays. Votes for women! Give them fiddles instead. Then they are sure to be happier; besides, they can't make political addresses.

has always been the controlling thought with the American Hosiery Company, established in 1868.
No attempt has ever been made to manufacture garments at a price or to make any article to sell in big volume.
AMHO Body Clothing

The Shift

The shift of industries from a war-time basis to one of reconstruction cannot help but benefit the public utility companies which have so ably borne their war-time burden.

Why not invest now in a 6% First Mortgage Bond of one of these companies, maturing on Oct. 15, 1919? The company is well established, of most modern type and serves a large agricultural and coal section.

This is an unusual opportunity for the investor who prefers the short-term type of investment and offers a yield of nearly

The power furnished is of hydro-electric generation, employing water instead of steam. This not only lessens cost of production, but eliminates to a large extent the labor factor because of the few men required in the operation.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

In early operations in yesterday's stock market traders had various items to consider which reflected the increasing attention that labor and industry are paying to problems of the future, and a decline in prices seemed to reflect considerable nervousness over the outlook. Later a somewhat different sentiment made its appearance and prices grew firmer, only to drift gradually into the aimless movements of last week. It is to be expected that from now on labor will voice its feelings whenever serious discussion of curtailment in industrial undertakings comes up prominently, but in realizing this the financial community has grounds to believe that strong efforts are being made to keep manufacturing on as active a basis as conditions make possible. The disposition of heavy war orders still on the books of corporations is plainly receiving a great deal of thought at Washington and signs which have come to light forecast decided efforts to replace these orders by commercial contracts, or at least to effect cancellations gradually, in a way to keep labor well employed. Wall Street heard many rumors yesterday of the cancellation of Government orders, but these reports seemed to have very little effect on the quotations of either stocks or bonds. As far as facts went, no evidence was produced to show that the Federal authorities had eliminated any substantial amount of war work now under way and traders plainly registered their intention for the day at least of waiting for tangible developments in this field.

Restrained as it is by the lack of large credit facilities and by uncertainties of the outlook, the stock market may be said to have given a good account of itself since the armistice went into effect. There were numerous declines running from 1 to more than 2 points yesterday, but equivalent gains elsewhere worked to bring about a net recession in average prices of no more than a half point. Last week there was a fairly large decline on Tuesday, but afterward many stocks stiffened up and the week's recessions were not material enough to show a real dominance of bearish influence. Since hostilities ceased selling pressure has not been pronounced save at brief intervals. The irregular course of prices has not spoken of pessimism over the future and in the opinion of close observers of market conditions stocks have acted in a way to satisfy numerous followers of the market who were apprehensive of sharp recessions when peace actually appeared.

The market for short term investments certainly has given no one cause for disappointment. The $20,000,000 Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company 6 per cent. three-year notes were more than six times over-subscribed yesterday in less than two hours. Going to subscribers at 98, sales on the curb quickly carried the price to 99¼, the reaction later leaving the notes no lower than 98⅝. These notes together with similar issues in point of maturity which have been floated in recent days appeal to buyers as securities which return a high yield and at the same time have an easily marketable quality.

Call money remained at 6 per cent. The movements in foreign exchange were without any particular feature.

TOBACCO NOTES GO QUICKLY

Liggett & Myers $20,000,000 Issue Is Six Times Oversubscribed.

The Guaranty Trust Company and the National City Company, which offered yesterday $20,000,000 three-year 6 per cent. notes of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, closed the subscription books in two hours with applications for nearly $137,000,000. This over-subscription, which was close to six times the amount of the offer, was looked upon in the financial district as evidence of the active investment demand of the country. In trading on the curb the notes advanced from 98½, which was a full half-point above the syndicate's offering price, to 99¼, closing at 98⅝. Approximately $200,000 were sold on the curb.

The eager demand which short-term notes have met since the last Liberty Loan campaign closed has made a decidedly favorable impression on bankers. Several other large items of industrial financing are pending and are expected to take the shape of notes. A large railroad issue, either of notes or bonds of relatively short maturity, is under discussion.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Big Investment Demand.

The ease with which $32,000,000 short-term notes have been absorbed since the midde of last week has well borne out the statement made by bankers when the Fourth Liberty Loan campaign ended that the country contained plenty of money for investment. Buyers have displayed a real eagerness for a chance to put their money to work for periods extending from one to three or five years when they can secure a return from 6¾ to 7½ per cent.

Where Are the Bears?

What has become of the "bear" party in the stock market? With funds for carrying long stock in a highly restricted state and the air containing many rumors of adverse developments to come in industry, a rare opportunity for efforts on the destructive side of market values would seem to be presented. Such efforts on a broad scale, however, have not been reflected in prices so far. An explanation heard in commission houses is that the speculative public is not moved either to sell out its holdings or to venture on the short side. Without the assistance of liquidation, it is said, the professional traders are unwilling to put out substantial lines of short stock, and so the market drifts.

Mexican Petroleum Dealings.

Closing at 163 yesterday, Mexican Petroleum displayed a decline of 12 points from last week's maximum quotation. The tendency of this issue since the armistice was declared has been more pronounced than that of other stocks which have lost ground, and the explanation may lie in the way business is conducted. Since dealings in the stock were investigated, a number of Stock Exchange firms have declined to buy it for customers except for cash, a method which is hardly encouraging to speculation on the long side.

Two Note Sales.

The bankers who handled the American Tobacco and the Liggett & Myers Tobacco offerings found investment conditions had changed considerably in the period intervening between the two transactions. The American Tobacco notes were sold on a basis to yield from 7 to 7½ per cent. depending on the maturities; the Liggett & Myers notes were easily disposed of on a 6¾ per cent. basis. Between the two offerings corporation bond prices generally had advanced from 2 to 10 points, a movement which gave the Liggett & Myers offering an excellent foundation.

Marine Preferred Turns Up.

Mercantile Marine preferred at 116¾ yesterday showed a recovery of nearly 4 points of last week's decline. The Directors met again without announcing any new developments in respect to the sale of the British tonnage.

War Stocks Hold Up.

It has been noticeable for several days that traders have not discriminated against the so-called war stocks. U. S. Industrial Alcohol gained 3 points yesterday, Bethlehem Steel B, ¼, while Crucible Steel lost only an eighth with a fairly large turnover. Baldwin lost ⅞, but it would not have been surprising if this stock had gone down much further as a result of the rumors of canceled orders. In the back of the trading mind there seems to be a feeling that war orders may at any time be replaced by commercial contracts, carrying reasonable profits.

UNION OIL PROFITS RISE.

In a report for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1918, made public yesterday, the Union Oil Company of California, while showing a decrease in income from last year, made a big gain in production. The decrease in income, it was said, was due to larger drilling operations and their increased costs. For the nine months of this year the company reports surplus before war taxes but after interest charges, depreciation and depletion, of $6,450,000 as compared with $6,800,000 in the corresponding period of 1917.

Profits after ordinary taxes and charges were deducted aggregated $9,700,000 in the nine months of 1918, compared with $9,050,000 in the like period of 1917, an increase of $650,000. Depreciation and depletion items this year were set down as having a value of $3,250,000, against $2,250,000 in the nine months of 1917, or a gain of $1,000,000.

President W. L. Stewart called attention to the progress of the exchange of shares of the Newlove Oil Company for lien bonds of the Union Oil Company, and reported that 2,375.92 shares of Newlove stock had been received and exchanged, the percentage thereof now owned by the Union concern being 96.40 per cent.

Brown Shoe Profits Decline.

The Brown Shoe Company reports net profits of $1,838,384 in the year ended Oct. 31, a decline of $240,176 from the total in the preceding year. After meeting Federal taxes, a balance remained for dividends amounting to $1,338,384, compared with $1,068,560 in 1917. The annual statement to shareholders said the order books at the start of the new fiscal year contained a large volume of orders, part of which are for export. The United States Government, the report stated, will continue to require a small percentage of the company's output.

Offer Municipal Bonds.

R. M. Grant & Co. are offering $490,000 4½ per cent. and 5 per cent. bonds of the city of Des Moines, due serially Nov. 1, 1923 to 1938, at prices to yield the buyer 4.50 per cent. on the money invested. The bonds are exempt from Federal income taxes.

FIGHT NEW WINCHESTER CO.

The committee representing about 25 per cent. of the stock of the Winchester Repeating Arms Company, which objects to the reorganization plan proposed by a committee of the majority stockholders, announced on Oct. 26, has advised stockholders not to deposit stock under the proposed plan.

The plan provides for a new company with $10,000,000 7 per cent. cumulative first preferred stock, $2,000,000 6 per cent. non-cumulative second preferred stock, and $1,000,000 common stock. The minority stockholders want a reorganization which "will secure equity in the property, in addition to sharing in the preferred stock." This was explained yesterday by one familiar with the details to mean that the minority stockholders want more of the new common stock and less of the new preferred.

TIME BOUNDARIES MOVED WESTWARD

Complying with Daylight Saving Act, Commission Announces Official Zone Limits.

EFFECTIVE WITH NEW YEAR

Eastern Time Extended to Michigan Boundary—Towns Marking the Three Dividing Lines.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—New and official boundaries for time zones in the United States, unifying existing lines and moving them slightly westward, were announced today by the Interstate Commerce Commission, to become effective at 2 A. M. Jan. 1 next. This order is pursuant to the Daylight Saving act, which, in addition to authorizing advance of the clock during the Summer, provided for permanent United States standard time and required the commission to define the limits of the standard time zones, which previously had been fixed only by custom of cross-continent railroads or by local law.

The line fixed by the commission separating the Eastern and Central time zones beginning at the Great Lakes, follows the boundary of Michigan through Toledo, Fremont, Clyde, Bellevue, Monroeville, Willard, Shelby Junction, Mansfield, Galion, Marion, Columbus, Lancaster, Dundas, and Gallipolis, Ohio; Huntington, Kenova, and Williamson, W. Va.; Dungannon, Va.; Bristol, Va.-Tenn.; Telford, Tenn.; Asheville and Franklin, N. C.; Atlanta, McDonough, Macon, Perry, Americus, Albany, and Thomasville, Ga.; the north boundary of Florida to River Junction, and the Apalachicola River to the Gulf of Mexico.

Between Central and Mountain time the line begins at the Canadian boundary, Portal, N. D., running through Minot and Goodall, N. D., and following the Missouri River to Pierre, S. D.; then through Murdo Mackenzie, S. D.; Long Pine, North Platte, McCook, and Republican Junction, Neb.; Phillipsburg, Plainville, Ellis, Dodge City, and Liberal, Kan.; Waynoka, Clinton, and Sayre, Okla.; Sweet Water, Big Springs, and San Angelo, Texas, and the 100th meridian to the Rio Grande River.

Between Mountain and Pacific time zones the line is fixed following the eastern boundary of the Blackfeet Indian Reservation in Montana and the Continental Divide to Helena, Butte and Dillon, Mont.; Pocatello, Idaho, and the Oregon Short Line to Ogden and Salt Lake City, Utah; thence the Los Angeles & Salt Lake Railroad and the west and south boundaries of Utah to the 113th meridian, thence to Seligman and Parker, Ariz., and along the Colorado River to the Mexican boundary.

All of Alaska is left within a single time zone, the commission holding that it cannot deal with this matter, nor with the omission of the Hawaiian Islands from the terms of the Daylight Saving act.

Municipalities along the line separating the Eastern and Central zones are to be governed by central time, except Fremont, Clyde, Bellevue, Monroeville, Willard, Shelby Junction, Galion, Lancaster, Dundas and Gallipolis, Ohio; Dungannon, Va.; Bristol, Va.-Tenn.; Asheville and Franklin, N. C.; McDonough, Macon, Perry and Thomasville, Ga., which will take Eastern time.

Between the Central and Mountain time zones, cities on the line will take Mountain time, except Portal, Flaxton and Minot, N. D.; Murdo Mackenzie, S. D.; Phillipsburg, Stockton, Plainville, Ellis and Liberal, Kan.; Waynoka, Ralph and Sayre, Okla.; Sweetwater, Big Spring and San Angelo, Texas.

All municipalities on the boundary between Mountain and Pacific time zones will use Mountain time.

COTTON ADVANCES IN AN ACTIVE MARKET

Switching Again Permitted Between Months—Liverpool Makes Day-Limit Advance.

Business was fairly active at the opening of yesterday's session of the cotton market, important positions showing advances of from 5 to 30 points. After the first call, however, the market turned quiet and some small recessions were recorded on Southern selling and realizing sales. There was covering at this point, which checked the decline, and for the rest of the morning session prices ruled at about Saturday's closing. There was a better sentiment on the floor around midday, with the result that active months reached the high levels of the day, December leading at 29.01c, January 28.45c, March 28.10c and May 27.75c.

Announcement was made that switching would be permitted between months in the local market, providing the purchase was made immediately against the sale. This ruling also makes it possible for switches between this market and New Orleans.

Cables from Liverpool were of a distinctly favorable tenor, the association there having gone back from the fifty-point maximum fluctuations in any one day to the original regulation of 100 points, or 200 points here. The market in Liverpool advanced the limit on this new ruling, closing at the top prices.

Attractive Long-Term Bonds

In view of the numerous inquiries we are now receiving about long-term bonds, we invite attention to some facts regarding two issues which in our opinion are very attractive.

United Kingdom of Great Britain & Ireland
5½ Secured Convertible Notes

These notes are due February 1, 1919, and are selling at 101¾. The reason that they are selling at a premium is because they are convertible up to February 1, 1919, into 20-year 5½% Bonds of the United Kingdom maturing February 1, 1937. If the notes are converted, the bonds would yield at the present price, a little over 5.35%. A 5% basis would mean a price of 105.90, and a 4¾% basis would mean a price of 109.

Anglo-French Convertible 5's

These bonds, due October 15, 1920, are convertible up to April 15, 1920, into joint 4½% Bonds of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and the Government of the French Republic, maturing in 1940, optional in 1930. The Anglo-French 5's are now selling at about 96, which would mean a basis of 4.80% for the long bond. The great advantage to the buyer today is that he can obtain over 7% for two years and during that period have the option of converting his money into one of the safest bonds yielding 4½%. The yield of over 7% compares favorably with the yields of some of our best industrial notes.

The low prices of both of these securities are due entirely to war conditions, and as France and Great Britain have been victorious in the war, there should be no doubt about future values. As soon as victory became assured the prices of both these securities advanced materially. We suggest that those interested communicate with us at once.

A statement issued yesterday said that it was the intention of the management to maintain the stock on a permanent dividend basis.

Ore Certificates Pay $2 a Share.

NO FARE RISE HERE; CRAIG EXPLAINS WHY

Would Inure to Benefit of Railway Companies, Not the City, Controller Declares.

GIVES CONTRACT TERMS

Brooklyn Real Estate Brokers' Letter Brings "Acceleration" Mention from Official.

Replying to a request of the Brooklyn Board of Real Estate Brokers that the street railway companies of the city be allowed to raise their fares, Controller Craig asserted yesterday that the city had no intention of granting such applications, as an increase over the present five-cent fare "would inure to the benefit of the transit companies and not to the City of New York."

The Controller explained that the action of the Board of Estimate last week in discharging its Franchise Committee from further consideration of the subject of increased fares disposed of applications of the railway companies.

The Board of Real Estate Brokers through Howard C. Pyke, Chairman of its Committee on Transit, wanted to know how the situation stood, and said it seemed reasonable that a slight increase in fares would be fair and just to real estate interests and the safety of the public, "more especially inasmuch as every other conceivable thing which we all use daily has increased very materially in price."

The Real Estate Standpoint.

The letter also said:

"Our board is very much interested from the real estate standpoint, because we believe that, with a five-cent fare, it will be impossible for the railroad companies to meet their proper share of the interest on the bonds of the dual subway system, in which the city is interested, and we understand a guarantee of payment of said interest on these bonds has been made by the city under the contracts, and that these deficits will have to be made up by the taxpayers, who always have to pay the entire freight, and a reasonable increase in fare would be borne by both rent payers and taxpayers alike, and also by those who use the lines and pay neither rent nor taxes in New York City."

In his letter Controller Craig said:

"It appears from your letter that you are laboring under a total misapprehension as to the nature and effect of the dual subway contracts. The railroad companies do not pay any share or part of the interest on the bonds or corporate stock issued by the City of New York for the construction of the dual subway system. The City of New York does not pay the interest on any bonds or obligations of any of the contracting companies; nor does it guarantee, directly or indirectly, the payment of interest upon any such obligations.

"The City of New York does not undertake or guarantee to make up any deficits that may arise because of insufficiency of earnings to meet the obligations of the operating companies. Doubtless the false impression under which you labor is the result of agitation or acceleration of those interested in procuring a 7-cent fare, the increase of which would inure to the benefit of the transit companies and not to the City of New York.

"Under the operating contracts certain deductions are made from the gross earnings, and, after all such deductions have been made, the balance, if any, sometimes referred to as the profit, is to be divided between the operating companies and the city. Among the things for which deductions are to be made from the earnings by the companies are the requirements for interest on certain outstanding obligations of the transit companies authorized by the Public Service Commission. If the earnings are insufficient to meet the interest on such obligations no liability to make up the deficit rests upon the City of New York.

The Deficits Cumulative.

"In certain cases the deficits are cumulative and are carried forward from year to year; so that after a lapse of years they may be wiped out. Among the deductions to be made from the earnings after the operating companies have made their deductions are deductions in favor of the city to meet the interest and other payments on account of the outstanding corporate stock issued for construction purposes. If the earnings are insufficient to meet this interest, it must be provided for annually in the budget and raised by taxation.

"If your board has any plan or proposition by which an increase in fare over these systems can be so arranged that the benefit thereof will accrue to the City of New York, and avoid the necessity of including unearned interest in the annual budget, it will receive most careful consideration; but you must bear in mind that any such plan will require the consent of the operating companies. Moreover, it will have to justify itself as a matter of public policy.

"The policy deliberately adopted and underlying the dual subway system was that of a 5-cent fare, the various advantages and disadvantages of which were then considered. It was clearly understood that for many years to come the City of New York would have to meet the interest and carrying charges of its investment by taxation. Should your board, after thorough consideration of the conditions that induced this policy, believe that it should be abandoned, and can justify it by an increased fare, perhaps the operating companies might consent to the change of fare for this purpose."

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

The market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange yesterday closed firm and moderately active, excepting in the rails, which were reactionary in tendency throughout the session. In general, the market movement was irregular up to the final hour, when a demand, initiated in Steel common and Marine preferred, made for improvement throughout the list.

Jewelry Manufacturers Pleased.

While there is still some red tape to be unwound before the metal actually can be got, local jewelry manufacturers are pleased that the embargo on platinum for the making or repairing of jewelry has been removed by the War Industries Board. Inquiries made here yesterday as to the prices now asked for platinum for use in jewelry failed to bring out definite quotations, but it was expected that they would be available in a day or two and that they might be lower than they were at the time the embargo went into effect. It was learned, however, that users of platinum who sold their holdings to the Government at $105 an ounce might obtain at that figure the equivalent of what their metal assayed by making application through the proper channel.

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday—6 per cent. for the best names.
Saturday—6 per cent. for the best names.
The quotations are for six months' paper.

No Bids Again Put In.

For the second time, yesterday, no bids were received at the local office of the Quartermaster General for furnishing 217,620 yards of 52-inch 32x28 1.75 Osnaburgs, to be used for target materials. Deliveries were to start this month and run through to March, 1919.

Burlap Demand Expected.

Heavy burlaps continued firm in the local market yesterday, in spite of the comparative quiet, but light weight goods could be had at half a cent below the Government maximums, both here and in the West Coast trading centres. The prohibition of the milling of white flour, which took off the market much of the wheat residue normally used for cattle feed both in this country and abroad, has been removed and this is expected shortly to result in a call for the light burlaps formerly used for bagging this stuff. The placing of a very large order for white flour late last week and the prospect of another being placed in a few days is expected to have a material effect on the purchase of burlaps to hold the by-product.

Gray Goods Buyers Waiting.

Excepting for some sales of odd lots of spot and nearby goods by second hands at prices well under the Government maximums, business in the local gray goods market yesterday was as bad as the weather. Reports regarding first hands did not exactly coincide. In some quarters it was said that they were offering goods for contract delivery, but that the buyers were not giving the offers very much attention. Against this was the assertion that sellers were just as willing to mark time on contracts as buyers, in the expectation of higher prices to come. It was clear, however, that for the rest of this year most mills are showing very little interest in the market.

Says Buyers Should Act Now.

Buyers of gray goods who are now holding off in the hope of forcing prices down are working in the wrong direction, according to an authority on matters pertaining to that trade. While it is having a temporary success in weakening values in second hands, and may be causing some of the weaker first hands to trade ahead at figures under the Government maximums, the man in question asserts that their action makes for higher prices in the long run. His contention is that buyers will be badly in need of goods by the turn of the year, and that, with the probability that Government restrictions on prices will be removed at that time, the resultant buying movement is likely to force the market "sky high."

Have Good Business Outlook.

With the announcement that the War Industries Board has allowed them to increase their output, manufacturers of stoves and furnaces feel very optimistic regarding future business. What they are looking forward to mostly is the building of apartments and homes costing from $6,000 to $20,000, which is now permitted. During the past few months the shortage of labor and materials has caused much inconvenience in the manufacturing end of this trade.

Although the price of novelty furniture has advanced during the past few months, the increase has not affected the sales to any great extent. Manufacturers in this line have been doing a large business during the past season, with duplicate orders coming in almost daily. There appears to be quite a demand for tea wagons and telephone desks, the latter being featured very extensively of late in the furniture and department stores.

The commission announces for Nov. 20, Dec. 11, and Jan. 22 an examination for teacher, for men and women. Vacancies in the Indian Service, at the salaries indicated below, will be filled from this examination. The usual entrance salary ranges from $600 to $720 a year. At each boarding school there is a common "mess" for all employes, the cost of which to each employe averages approximately $15 a month. Day school teachers are usually paid $720 a year. At the day schools the wife of the teacher may be appointed housekeeper at $300 a year. As difficulty has been experienced in securing eligibles for the positions of kindergartner with musical ability and teachers for primary and intermediate grades, qualified persons are urged to enter this examination. Persons with supervisory qualifications may be appointed from the teacher register of eligibles as Principals in the boarding schools. At a large number of schools unmarried eligibles are desired. Of the female eligibles those having musical ability are often preferred. Competitors will be examined in arithmetic and elementary algebra, 15; pedagogy, 20; general geography, history, and civil government of the United States, 15; English grammar, analysis, and American literature, 15; physiology and hygiene, 5; nature study and drawing, 10; training and experience, 20. Applicants must have reached their twentieth but not their fiftieth birthday on the date of the examination.

OFFICIALS OF B. R. T. AVOID WRECK BLAME

Vice President Dempsey and Gen. Supt. Blewett Refuse to Waive Immunity at Hearing.

WILLIAMS ON THE STAND

Denies Opposing War Labor Board and Brings In Dummy Corporations in System.

The attempt to fix criminal responsibility for the wreck in which ninety-one lives were lost in the Malbone Street tunnel of the B. R. T. on Nov. 1 was made difficult yesterday by the refusal of Vice President John J. Dempsey and Division Superintendent Thomas F. Blewett to waive immunity at the hearing conducted by District Attorney Lewis before Mayor Hylan, sitting as a magistrate, in the County Court House, Brooklyn.

The chief object of the inquiry is to discover what officials authorized the employment on Nov. 1 of unqualified motormen, one of whom took his train on a wild race which ended in the disaster. Colonel T. S. Williams, President of the B. R. T., who was a witness, avoided taking any share of the responsibility and named Vice President Dempsey as the official in full charge of operation.

The only man, so far, who has admitted any share in the employment of green motormen is John S. Talbot, a trainmaster, who testified that he had made up several crews of inexperienced men at the direction of Superintendent Blewett.

Denies Disobeying War Labor Board.

District Attorney Lewis asked President Williams if he had not discussed at a conference with Vice President Dempsey the night before the strike how the shortage of men could be met.

"I asked him," said President Williams, "what he thought of his ability to run trains. He said, in substance, that he thought he would be able to maintain fair service."

President Williams said he got his information from the newspapers that there was going to be a strike of motormen and telephoned at once to Mr. Dempsey to meet him at his office. While he was there he received a telegram from Mayor Hylan, notifying him of the likelihood of a strike and asking him to prevent it by complying with the decree of the War Labor Board.

President Williams denied that the company had refused to comply with any order of the War Labor Board and said they were planning at the time to comply with its recommendations, which were not decrees. He put the responsibility for the strike by inference on the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, by reading a clause from the findings of the War Labor Board to the effect that the company should not be obliged to deal with any outside labor organization, but should settle its labor difficulties with its own employes' organization.

District Attorney Lewis's questions were intended to bring out that Colonel Williams knew there was to be a shortage of train crews and that, as President of the B. R. T., he was responsible for the steps taken to meet that shortage. This attempt was impeded by the fact that Colonel Williams is not President of the New York Consolidated Railways Company, a B. R. T. subsidiary, which was in charge of the operation of trains over the line on which the accident occurred. J. H. Hallock, President of this company, testified previously that he owned no stock in it, received no salary, and gave little time to it. Active officials of the B. R. T. described him as a figurehead.

District Attorney Lewis sought to establish that, though there was a legal distinction, there was no difference between the two companies in fact, and that the same officials directed both companies. Questions along this line were answered by Colonel Williams with great care, in long and involved sentences, which usually left the matter hazier than it had been before.

Mr. Lewis sought to show that the Malbone Street tunnel had recently been completed and was still controlled by the New York Municipal Railways Company, a subsidiary of the B. R. T. Colonel Williams said that the New York Municipal Railways Company, as it completed a section of road turned it over to the Consolidated, so that the track where the accident occurred was legally controlled by the dummy officials of the latter company.

ASK WILSON FOR AMNESTY.

Mr. and Mrs. Upton Sinclair Urge Pardon for Agitators.

Upton Sinclair, novelist and social reformer, and his wife, Mary Craig Sinclair, have started a movement from their home at Pasadena, Cal., to obtain signatures to a petition to President Wilson for the pardon of "something over a thousand men and women, with several thousand more under indictment," who are in jail or under charges for "violation of the laws forbidding propaganda against the war and the draft."

The petition stated that the judgment of these persons has "seemed to us mistaken, but we know that their sincerity and integrity is beyond question." The sentences of Eugene V. Debs and Rose Pastor Stokes to twenty years' imprisonment are contrasted with that of Karl Liebknecht in Germany to four years.

"With the surrender of the last stronghold of the enemy," the petition sets forth, "the last power which can of its own selfish will disturb the peace of the world, there is gone the last reason that could by any possibility justify the holding of pacifists and anti-militarists in jail. The persons who now wish to keep them there are not the friends of your policies of enlightenment and justice, but on the contrary their bitter enemies—and this whether such persons are of your own party or of the opposition."

COL. CRALL TO LEAD 7TH.

He was commissioned Lieutenant Colonel Oct. 11, 1917.

Colonel Crall was a member of the Seventh Regiment Bisley team in 1905 and 1906 when he broke the world's record as a marksman, and the regiment team won the international trophy from the Queen's Westminster Volunteer Regiment of England.

FLOOD INVADES QUEBEC.

Lower Town Inundated and Million Dollars' Damage Done.

QUEBEC, Nov. 18.—Damage, which may reach nearly $1,000,000, was caused here within an hour tonight, when the floodtide, swept in by an easterly gale, flooded the streets of the lower town.

Havoc was caused along the river front, where boats were driven against wharves and navigation was made so dangerous that ferry service between Quebec and Levis had to be discontinued.

DECISION RESERVED ON WHITMAN'S PLEA

Smith's Attorneys Tell Court Terms Upon Which Ballot Inspection Will Be Accepted.

'FISHING EXCURSION' DENIED

Counsel Say the Governor Merely Wants to See Into Boxes in Suspected Districts.

Justice Eugene A. Philbin of the Supreme Court, after hearing argument yesterday reserved decision on the application of Governor Whitman for permission to examine the ballots in Manhattan and the Bronx.

Counsel for Governor-elect Alfred E. Smith, through Abram I. Elkus, who appeared, expressed willingness to agree to an order, provided it contained stipulations that the ballots be examined before a Justice of the Supreme Court and handled only by Clerks of the court in the presence of watchers; further, that notice be given to all candidates; that Governor Whitman assume the entire cost, and that the examination be deferred until after the official canvass has been completed.

Herbert R. Limburg, who, with Abraham S. Gilbert and ex-Magistrate Emil Fuchs, was in court representing the Governor, urged that this suggestion was made to delay inspection until after Smith had obtained his certificate of election, when further dilatory tactics might postpone a final determination until after the next Governor's term had expired.

Mr. Elkus in response said the only legal course for Governor Whitman was to await the conclusion of the official canvass and the issuance of a certificate of election, then bring quo warranto proceedings if he believed he had ground for a contest.

While Mr. Elkus did not urge that the re-examination should apply to the entire State, the attorneys for Governor Whitman, anticipating this argument, pointed to the text of the statute: "Any candidate shall be entitled as a right to an examination, in person or by authorized agents, of any ballots upon which his name lawfully appeared as that of a candidate," as conclusive of the right of a candidate to select what ballots he desires to examine.

Ex-Magistrate Fuchs told the court that it was not the intention of Governor Whitman to proceed further with the re-examination of ballots than was necessary to prove conclusively whether reports of irregularities in certain districts were true or false.

Others of counsel for the Governor resent the suggestion that they have started out on a "fishing excursion" in a vague hope of discovering grounds for a contest.

"If the order is granted, as we expect it will be," said Mr. Gilbert of the Governor's counsel," we will open the boxes in certain districts where, if reports that we have received are true, an examination of the ballots will make a difference in the result as announced. Should nothing be found in these districts we would regard that as sufficient indication that our information is incorrect and that no purpose could be served by carrying the matter further. All we want is to verify the result as it appears from unofficial returns."

Chairman George A. Glynn of the Republican State Committee last night said he had received telegrams from thirty-one of sixty-two counties, giving the result of the official canvass, but declined to reveal the figures. According to the figures received by the Democratic State Committee, the official count in thirty-one counties up-State has given Governor Whitman a net gain of 322 votes over the number announced two days after election. In the uncompleted official canvass of counties in this city, Smith has gained 255 votes.

The official count in Suffolk, completed yesterday, gave Whitman 16,234 votes, against 11,305 for Smith, making his plurality 4,929, against 4,521 in the unofficial returns, or a gain of 408.

The Manhattan Aldermen completed the canvass of New York County yesterday, and will proceed to the tabulation of the vote today. Sufficient progress has been made in the other boroughs to render probable an announcement of the total vote in the city by this evening.

Swifts Premium Ham and Bacon
1 Ton of Beef Value $400.00 Profit $5.00 or 1¼%
1 Ton of Coal Value $7.00 Profit $.25 or 3½%

Why Compare Beef and Coal Profits?

Swift & Company has frequently stated that its profit on beef averages only one-fourth of a cent a pound, and hence has practically no effect on the price.

Comparison has been made by the Federal Trade Commission of this profit with the profit on coal, and it has pointed out that anthracite coal operators are content with a profit of 25 cents a ton, whereas the beef profit of one-fourth of a cent a pound means a profit of $5.00 a ton.

The comparison does not point out that anthracite coal at the seaboard is worth at wholesale about $7.00 a ton, whereas a ton of beef of fair quality is worth about $400.00 wholesale.

To carry the comparison further, the 25 cent profit on coal is 3½ per cent of the $7.00 value.

The $5.00 profit on beef is only 1¼ per cent of the $400.00 value.

The profit has little effect on price in either case, but has less effect on the price of beef than on the price of coal.

Coal may be stored in the open air indefinitely; beef must be kept in expensive coolers because it is highly perishable and must be refrigerated.

Coal is handled by the carload or ton; beef is delivered to retailers by the pound or hundred weight.

Methods of handling are vastly different. Coal is handled in open cars; beef must be shipped in refrigerator cars at an even temperature.

Fairness to the public, fairness to Swift & Company, fairness to the packing industry, demands that these indisputable facts be considered. It is impossible to disprove Swift & Company's statement, that its profits on beef are so small as to have practically no effect on prices.
